HOLIDAY CRASH TOLL HITS 13 IN CHICAGO AREA

4 Killed in Accident Near Joliet.

249 Die in U. S.

Some 249 persons died thruout the nation in week-end traffic accidents, according to an Associated Press roundup for the period. Illinois led the list with 23 deaths. California, with 21, was second, and New York third with 20.

Death rode Chicagoland's highways over the Labor day week-end. Thirteen persons were killed in accidents reported for yesterday and Saturday alone. Traffic authorities said the toll was the worst for a holiday period in the Chicago area in many years.

As thousands of pleasure seekers clogged the roads heading for resorts in Illinois and other states, news of fatalities poured in. The worst single accident occurred 23 miles south of Joliet in Route 66, when a car smashed into a truck, killing the four who were in the car.

Robert E. Hunt, 37 years old, of Peoria, and his wife, 35.

Robert D. Hunt, 65, and his wife, Selma, 65, also of Peoria, Hunt's parents.

The four were killed near Joliet when their car, driven by the younger Hunt, left the road on a curve and returned to smash into a truck driven by Jack Ashton of Barry, Ill.

Those residents of the Chicago area who were killed in accidents outside it follow:

Mrs. Oscar Bruss, Cicero.

Dr. Frank Cutler Linden, 79, of 639 North Pine avenue.

Mrs. Bruss and Jarvis were killed in a collision in Appleton, Wis. Mrs. Bruss' husband and two other persons were injured.

Mrs. Kleusken was killed when a car driven by her husband, Henry, ran into a ditch near Kenosha, Wis.

Dr. Linden, a physician for 52 years, was killed in a collision near Hartford, Wis. His wife, Jennie, and her sister, Mrs. Ernestine Mason of Milwaukee, Wis., were injured.

Runs into Safety Island.

Those residents of the Chicago area who were killed within it follow:

Joseph Bogacz, 38, of 2219 Lyndale street, who was fatally injured when his car struck a safety island and caught fire in the 1700 block of North Ashland avenue.

Ernest Patton, 68, of 5803 Huron street, victim of a hit-run car.

Mrs. Katherine Polka, 69, of 4337 North St. Louis avenue.

Olaf Strom, 65, of 4501 Cumberland road, Norwood Park township.

Charles R. Thompson, 65, of 2861 Burling street.

Die of Injuries.

Three other Chicagoans died of injuries suffered prior to Saturday. They were:

Russell Haskin, 51, of 14613 Princeton avenue, Dolton, injured July 27. He died in a Blue Island hospital.

Miss Catherine Amedio, 30, of 3126 Princeton avenue, injured Aug. 2.

Mrs. Freda Bielke, 42, Chicago, who died in Paoli, Ind., of injuries suffered there Monday.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 622 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 429 were killed in Chicago, where 16,476 were injured in the same period.

500,000 BRITISH WOMEN AWAIT WAR JOB DRAFT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 31.—Ernest Bevin, minister of labor, is expected to announce plans tomorrow to compel half a million women to accept war jobs.

According to the Sunday Dispatch, Bevin is planning "changes amounting to virtual industrial conscription of women." Women are wanted in every possible job, both in industry and in the services, to release men for fighting.

Bevin is said to be hoping to double the number of women in the aircraft industry. They now constitute 30 per cent of the labor personnel engaged in this work.

U. S. ENVOY ACTS AS NEGOTIATOR, LONDON IS TOLD

Report Stalin Orders Army to Move Out.

LONDON, Sept. 1 [Monday] (AP).—Russian initiated peace negotiations with Finland, in which John G. Winant, United States ambassador to London, is the central figure, were reported under way today by the Stockholm correspondent of the Daily Mail.

John G. Winant.

The correspondent said Premier Josef Stalin himself made the opening move by ordering withdrawal of Red army forces from the Karelian isthmus frontier between Russia and Finland.

These reports were not confirmed in any official quarter. American embassy sources who could be reached early today said they were unable to confirm or deny that Winant figured in the negotiations.

Finns Deny Report.

In Helsingfors the Finns officially denied rumors abroad to the effect that the Helsingfors government itself had started negotiations for a mediated peace.

The Finnish statement described such reports as "without foundation," but left unsaid whether the Russians might have taken the initiative.

There were indications from Germany that the Nazis felt the Finns might come to terms with Stalin.

Berlin dispatches said there were questions in some quarters there as to how far Germany's northern ally against Russia might care to go, now that the Finns have all but reached what seemed to be their war aims—a return of frontier regions lost to the soviet union in the 1940 Russian-Finnish peace treaty.

The London Mail's correspondent wired:

"Stalin has ordered Marshal Klementi Voroshilov to withdraw soviet forces from the Karelian isthmus to the classic Russian fortifications along the former Finnish-Russian frontier.

"The order means withdrawal along the whole front to a depth of approximately 150 miles.

"Fifteen Russian divisions, probably outnumbering the Finns two to one, are involved.

Reds Not Beaten.

"The Finns never have been able to make any impression upon this front, so that the sudden Russian retreat must be attributed entirely to political reasons.

"The Russians in no sense are beaten. The Finns in claiming advances mention no prisoners, booty or casualties. The soviet forces are withdrawing in perfect order.

"The conclusion is that Moscow hopes to make a separate peace with Finland on the basis of the Russo-Finnish frontier as it was before the winter of 1939-'40.

"It is unlikely that Stalin ordered such a withdrawal—which means abandoning a strong second line of defense in the isthmus—unless he received assurance that the Finns would come to terms.

"Mme. Alexandra Kollontay, soviet ambassador to Stockholm, has telegraphed Moscow that the Finns apparently want peace, but she herself is taking no part in any negotiations.

Rumors Sweep Stockholm.

"Reports of Finnish peace feelers have been sweeping Stockholm for some days now.

"The negotiations at present are said to be centralized in the hands of John G. Winant, American ambassador to London.

"American diplomatic circles in Stockholm will not confirm reports that the United States minister to Helsingfors, Mr. [H. F. Arthur] Schoenfeld, has been approached as to the possibility of Washington as an intermediary between Finland and Russia.

"In Helsingfors it is significant that the British legation staff is allowed complete freedom of movement within the city limits."

Capital Discounts Reports.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31 [Special].—Official and diplomatic circles tonight disclaimed knowledge of reports from Stockholm, Sweden, that John G. Winant, American ambassador to London, was acting as a "go-between" in peace negotiations between Russia and Finland.

Escaped Rodeo Bull Hurts 6 in Holiday Crowd

A holiday crowd visiting the Shedd aquarium was terrorized yesterday afternoon when a huge Brahma bull escaped from a Soldiers' field rodeo and spent a quarter of an hour charging panic stricken persons on the aquarium grounds. Three women and three policemen were hurt and several other persons bowled over before the animal was cornered and shot to death.

Eyewitnesses said the beast threw one woman high into the air, barely missed goring a man and a small boy, whom he knocked down the aquarium terrace, and almost killed a park district police sergeant after pinning him against the aquarium wall. Most of the strollers scampered up the building steps or down the pedestrian subway to safety.

Two Steers Escape.

Shortly after the animal was slain two Brahma steers also escaped from the rodeo but were herded back into the stadium before attacking any one.

The injured are Mrs. Pearl Raminis, 55 years old, 2511 North Halsted street; Mrs. Mary Farah, 28, of 622 Stevens street, Indianapolis, Ind.; Mrs. Addie Freije, 19, also of Indianapolis; Sergt. Ralph Riley of the park district force, and Policemen James McCormick and James Keegan.

Mrs. Raminis suffered injuries to her head, her stomach, and a shoulder. Mrs. Farah was brushed by the bull and injured when she leaped to safety from the lake front wall. Mrs. Freije was injured when she stumbled and fell while fleeing. The policemen were injured in the final struggle in which the bull was killed.

Sighted by Policeman.

Policeman Anthony Gasick, directing traffic in the Outer drive near Soldiers' field, was the first outsider, apparently, to realize the bull was loose. He said it charged up the areaway at the east side of the field, narrowly missed him as it stormed across the drive, then rushed at a woman strolling along the sidewalk.

After missing her the bull continued to the aquarium, where a crowd estimated at 500 scrambled into the pedestrian subway or raced up the aquarium steps to escape. The bull then injured the women and continued around the building. At the rear of the aquarium a cowboy from the rodeo finally got a rope on the Brahma and tied it to a tree.

Breaks Rope in Lunge.

Sergt. Riley arrived then, and the animal lunged at him but was checked short by the rope. It lunged again, however, and the rope broke. Riley, pistol in hand, fired, as did Policeman McCormick. The bull, altho hit, didn't slow up. It smashed Riley against the building wall, bumped McCormick, and was finally killed by a blast from a shotgun in the hands of Policeman McCormick.

Riley, one of whose bullets struck the bull above the right eye, suffered an injury to his back and his legs were cut and bruised. McCormick also was butted and injured. Keegan escaped with a hand wound.

The bull and the two steers escaped while being taken to the arena thru a passageway which passes by the ramp. Rodeo officials, who termed the Brahmas "the most dangerous of all rodeo animals," said the gate at the outside entrance to the ramp should have been locked and that a full investigation would be made. The dead animal weighed 2,300 pounds and was worth $750.

47 RUSSIANS FLYING TO U. S. CAPITAL REACH ALASKA IN 2 PLANES

NOME, Alaska, Aug. 31 (AP).—Two big Russian seaplanes en route from Moscow to Washington, D. C., on a mysterious mission alighted here today for refueling after a rough crossing of the Siberian wastes and the Bering straits. The two planes carried a total of 47 men, all of whom were reported by authorities to have diplomatic passports. The pilots said they had left Moscow Thursday and would leave Nome tomorrow, flying toward Washington via Anchorage, Sitka, and San Francisco.

The two big planes swooped down on the waters of Morton sound without advance warning. The soviet embassy in Washington, D. C., denied knowing of the flight or its purpose.

The heavily clothed, bearded flyers merely asked for fuel. Nome air lines began refueling the ships from their meager gasoline stocks.

Woman Saves Mother, Baby in Boat Spill

A young matron rescued a mother and child from drowning yesterday in Lake Marie, three miles west of Antioch, after a boating accident which cost the life of Thomas Wisbarth, 23 years old, a student, of Cleveland, O. A second woman also was rescued.

The heroine was Mrs. Walter Schaub, who is spending the summer at the lake. She was operating a 22 foot motorboat with a party of friends aboard. They were Wisbarth; Miss Irene Barrett, 1203 Ashland avenue, Wilmette; Mrs. James E. Looze of McHenry, and Mrs. Looze's daughter, Karen, 3. The husbands of Mrs. Schaub and Mrs. Looze were in a sailboat following in the wake of the motorboat.

Woman Plunges to Rescue.

A sharp turn suddenly threw Mrs. Looze and her child and Miss Barrett into the water. Mrs. Schaub, an expert swimmer, shut off the motor, and dived after them. She swam to Mrs. Looze, who had managed to hold Karen safely, and supported both until Schaub and Looze came up in their sailboat and picked them up along with Miss Barrett.

Wisbarth, who had been left alone in the motorboat, had disappeared in the meantime. When last seen, he was trying to turn the boat around in a position of rescue. H. E. Rosing, assistant fire chief of Antioch, said Wisbarth probably dived into the water to assist in the rescue and sank. Wisbarth, the Loozes, and Miss Barrett were guests of the Schaubs.

U. of C. Student Rescued.

Bathers along 55th street and Lake Michigan witnessed a rescue yesterday when a University of Chicago student, Wayne Jurgenson, 22, of 6116 University avenue, became exhausted while swimming about 600 feet off shore.

When it became obvious that his roommate, George Brenner, 22, swimming with him, could not bring Jurgenson ashore, Helmuth Teichner, 30, of 6511 North Oakley avenue, swam to their aid and effected the rescue.

Girl Drowns, Sister Saved.

Dorothy Majewski, 12, of 822 14th street, North Chicago, was drowned at an unprotected beach north of Greenwood avenue in Waukegan. Dorothy and her sister, Dolores, 14, went to the beach with their brother, George, 32, and his family.

The two girls were floating on inner tubes about 500 feet off shore when George decided they were too far out. He swam to them and brought Dolores ashore. Before he could return for Dorothy, however, she had drifted farther into the lake and was finally swept off the inner tube.

FISH HITS PLEA AT F.D.R. RALLY TO SAVE WORLD

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 31.—Proposals by Roosevelt boosters at yesterday's rally in honor of the President on the lawn of a Roosevelt tenant farmer drew a blistering reply today from Representative Hamilton Fish [R., N. Y.], who has represented this district in congress for 21 years.

Representative Hamilton Fish.

Moses Smith, on whose rented lawn the annual meeting of the Roosevelt Home club was held, proposed that all noninterventionists be "banished to the highest peak in the Rocky mountains." The Roosevelt backers cheered lustily.

John E. Mack, a Poughkeepsie lawyer who twice nominated Mr. Roosevelt for the Presidency, urged the President to "clear up the troubles of the whole world . . . and finish the work which Woodrow Wilson conceived." More cheers.

Not Enough Peaks, Fish Says.

To the first proposal Fish replied that there are not enough peaks in the Rockies to accommodate all the Americans opposed to war. If any separating of interventionists and noninterventionists must be done, he asserted, it would be a much simpler process to get rid of the war mongers.

As to Mack's proposal for clearing up the troubles of the whole world, Fish continued, Mr. Roosevelt would show himself more worthy of his high office if he concentrated more on meeting the problems of America and let others worry about the rest of the world.

"Eighty-five per cent of the American people are against war, Fish declared. "The people of this district have expressed themselves, 9 to 1, against becoming involved in a conflict in Europe or Asia. [Fish referred to a postcard poll he conducted recently among his constituents.] Any remarks made yesterday notwithstanding, I expect to poll my biggest majority when I run for reelection next year on a noninterventionist platform.

Called Insult to Nation.

"The slurs by speakers at the President's rally are an insult to this district and the rest of the nation. The American public is determined to prevent Mr. Roosevelt or Field Marshal Harry Hopkins from involving this country in Europe's endless warfare.

"The suggestion that Mr. Roosevelt solve the problems of the whole world is a nice thought, but it's a pretty big job for one man, especially when that man hasn't succeeded in solving the problems here at home in America."

Fish holds his seat in congress despite repeated attempts by the President in past elections to have him defeated.

During the last campaign Clare Luce, a Broadway playwright, and active in pro-war activities, was imported to master-mind a publicity campaign against him.

Fish, however, won as usual. While he has been elected time after time, records show, the President has carried the district only once in his political career. That was in 1910 when Mr. Roosevelt was running for the state senate.

Anti-War Stand Praised.

While the President's boosters were enjoying their outing yesterday amid the rustic surroundings, Representative Fish was busy in a musty office in downtown Poughkeepsie interviewing his constituents.

He reported that the majority of those with whom he talked praised his anti-war stand and urged him to continue his fight to keep the nation from being plunged into an all out shooting war on foreign soil.

Mr. Roosevelt, who is spending the week-end on his mother's Hudson river estate, spent the day today putting the finishing touches on a Labor day radio speech to be delivered tomorrow afternoon. The speech will be heard over W-G-N and Mutual at 12:45 p. m. It is regarded likely that he will make an important declaration on United States foreign policy. It will be his first public address to the American people since his historic meeting at sea with Winston Churchill.

32d Division Will Hold '42 Convention in Chicago

Jackson, Mich., Aug. 31 (AP).—The 32d [Red Arrow] division voted today to hold its 1942 convention in Chicago. All previous division conclaves have been held either in Wisconsin or Michigan.

WORLD EYEING U. S.-JAPANESE FENCING MATCH

Parley May Decide Course of War.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—The most spectacular and momentous diplomatic fencing match since the beginning of the war is now claiming the world spotlight.

The fencers are President Roosevelt and Prince Konoe, premier of the Japanese empire, who have commenced negotiations looking to a settlement of the differences caused by Japanese actions in Asia and the challenge thereof by the United States government under the Hoover and Roosevelt administrations.

The outcome of the battle of wits between the President and the prince bids fair to influence profoundly the course of the wars now raging in Europe, Africa and Asia. If a settlement should be reached the President would be enabled to withdraw the United States fleet from the Pacific ocean for use against the Nazis in the Atlantic.

Transfer Might Tip Scales.

Such transfer of American warships to the Atlantic might tip the scales in favor of Britain sufficiently to insure the eventual defeat of Germany, Japan's ally.

If the negotiations fail or are prolonged indefinitely the President will be impelled to keep the fleet in the Pacific to defend British Malaya and the Dutch East Indies in accord with the President's far eastern policy as revealed a week ago by Prime Minister Churchill of Great Britain. The longer the American fleet is kept in the Pacific the more secure will be Germany, Japan's ally.

After preliminary soundings by United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew in Tokio and Japanese Ambassador Admiral Kichisabura Nomura in Washington Prince Konoe opened the negotiations with a personal letter addressed to Mr. Roosevelt.

Delivered in Person.

Admiral Nomura, claiming an ambassador's right, delivered the letter in person to Mr. Roosevelt and remained for a conference with the President and Secretary of State Cordell Hull. The only information emanating from this meeting was that Mr. Roosevelt would answer Prince Konoe with a personal letter.

Thereafter the two distinguished negotiators will get down to cases on what each one wants and what each one is willing to concede. They start far apart, so far that few informed persons in official Washington are sanguine of a settlement of fundamental differences.

More likely, many believe, is a sort of truce whereby the United States would lift the economic sanctions that are squeezing Japan industrially and commercially and Japan would halt her expansion program temporarily, at least.

Issues in Dispute.

The negotiations cover a broad field embracing the following principal areas of dispute:

1. Japan's four year old invasion of China which Mr. Roosevelt has denounced as a treaty-breaking aggression and is combatting by furnishing military aid to China.

2. Japan's seizure of Manchuria in 1931 which the Hoover administration denounced with impotence because of the refusal of Great Britain to support the protest. The Roosevelt administration indorsed the Hoover policy and has declined to recognize the Japanese puppet state, Manchukuo.

3. Japan's recent occupation of French Indo-China and maneuvers for the domination of Thailand, both threats to adjoining British possessions and the Dutch East Indies, which Mr. Roosevelt is marshaling American military, naval, and economic resources to check.

Gasoline for Russia.

4. The furnishing of American airplane gas and war munitions to soviet Russia, which Japan, linked by fraternal treaty ties to both Germany and Russia, professes to view with alarm.

5. American economic sanctions which have frozen Japanese assets in this country, disrupted Japanese shipping to the United States, curbed the flow of American oil to Japan and destroyed Japan's lucrative export of silk to the principal silk stocking market of the world.

6. Japan's "co-prosperity" system for eastern Asia and America's open

COUNTER-DRIVES BY REDS HALTED, GERMANS CLAIM

Leningrad's Defenses Are Declared Weakening.

(Maps on back page.)

BERLIN, Aug. 31 (AP).—On this last day of the second year of the European war touched off by Germany's operations against Poland, battleplanes of the German air force ranged far east of the Dnieper river in Russia and German land forces "flattened out" what appeared to be secondary Red army counterthrusts in the Gomel sector.

Odessa, soviet Black sea port and naval base, held out against a bitter siege. Fighting raged about Leningrad, the second city of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, but Berlin sources said its defenses were apparently weakening.

In the far north, German allied Finland had regained approximately the frontier regions she lost to Russia in the 1940 Moscow-Helsingfors peace treaty.

Silent on Central Action.

The German high command communique stressed Finnish progress and made no mention of German action on the Russian front.

"As already reported in a special announcement," it said, "Finnish troops administered a destructive defeat to soviet forces in heavy battles in the vicinity of Viipuri [Karelian isthmus city 75 miles northwest of Leningrad] and on Aug. 30 won back the town itself. At the same time the Finnish troops made impressive gains of territory on the Karelian isthmus in the direction of Leningrad."

Menace to Leningrad Seen.

German dispatches declared these northland fighters had chased the Russians back on the isthmus to what was the Russian-Finnish border before the soviet attack in 1939. DNB, German news agency, stated that, northeast of Lake Ladoga, Finns had passed the old boundary in an operation that conceivably could menace Leningrad.

[The old Karelian isthmus border was about 40 miles northwest of Leningrad; the boundary east of Lake Ladoga was some 200 miles away.]

Russian forces, however, still held Hango, the old naval harbor on the Gulf of Finland.

Counterattacks Flattened.

German dispatches said Russian counterthrusts in the middle sector of the eastern front flattened out against a stonewall defense. Russians were said to have lost 30 tanks in one attack.

From the northern front came reports that the Russians had planted thousands of land mines to hinder the advance on Leningrad. One army corps was said to have removed 1,100.

Railway lines and fortifications were reported to have been blasted by German flyers east of the Dnieper, 143 Red army planes were declared destroyed and a toll was claimed too at sea—the sinking of two gunboats, a tug, and a transport by patrols over the Finnish gulf and Lake Ladoga, and the damaging of a 4,000 ton ship near Odessa.

The Russians were said to have suffered "bloody losses" in an attempt on Friday to recapture a Dnieper river island south of Kherson, lower Ukraine.

WAR IS TOPPLING PAST GREAT OFF PARIS PEDESTALS

[Copyright: 1941: By the New York Times.]

VICHY, France, Aug. 31.—Parisian authorities are considering a plan to melt down many of the peacetime capital's famed bronze statues in connection with the campaign for salvaging any available nonferrous metals.

France in the last 50 years has been prodigal in erecting statues, many of them representing public figures whose reputations have been dimmed by time.

One point complicating the melting program, however, is: Who would decide which statues should be scrapped, and which should be allowed to stand?

Home owners have been promised more than current prices if they turn in ornaments or other unnecessary articles made of copper, brass, lead, zinc, and tin.

KILLED WHEN AUTO CRASHES.

New Minden, Ill., Aug. 31 (AP).—Thrown from an automobile as it overturned on state highway 127 near here, Wilbert Dinkelmann, 23, was fatally injured last night. Unhurt were the driver, Willard Ruter, who swerved to avoid a collision, and Melvin Voliner.

REDS CLAIM GAIN AGAINST NAZIS ON BOGGY FRONT

Foes' Attempts to Bridge Dnieper Thwarted.

(Maps on back page.)

MOSCOW, Sept. 1 [Monday] (AP).—Red army soldiers are gaining ground on the boggy central front with artillery supported counterattacks and have broken up repeated German efforts to force a crossing of the Dnieper river, it was reported today.

Front line dispatches said the army of Marshal Semeon Timoshenko was pushing methodically forward, while their fellow soldiers on the northwestern and southwestern fronts were battling to hold positions against violent German assaults.

The midnight communique merely said, as it has for days, that fighting was in progress along the whole front, but other reports told of German attempts to put a pontoon bridge over the Dnieper, in the Ukraine.

The four man crew of a Russian bomber sacrificed their lives to shatter the bridge, the Russians said.

Dive Into Span.

With their bomber burning from a hit by a German shell "the crew decided to steer the burning plane with its remaining bombs against the enemy pontoon bridge," a war report declared. "The plane hit the bridge and an explosion broke the bridge into splinters."

The Russians declared the Germans had concentrated large tank and infantry forces near the town of D [probably Dnepropetrovsk] on the right bank of the Dnieper, and sappers had begun constructing the pontoon bridge.

In two days, the Russians said, almost 1,000 Germans were killed by artillery and bombers, and almost 50 tanks, 6 anti-aircraft batteries, and many pontoons were destroyed. On the third day the Germans pushed the bridge to midstream, where the bomber wrecked it.

Tell of Victory in North.

On the far north front, the Red army was said to have killed 1,200 out of a picked German force of 1,500 troops sent to capture the city of "N."

Dispatches to the party newspaper Pravda said German artillery fire on the central front was growing weaker.

The Russian communique declared the soviet pilots destroyed 125 German planes at a cost of 24 soviet aircraft.

The soviet press reviewed the two year old war and declared fighting on the Russian front is the turning point toward Nazi defeat in a long and bloody conflict.

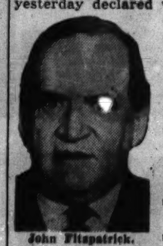
ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

CHICAGO LABOR COUNCIL WARS ON RACKETEERS

Federation News Indorses Tribune Crusade.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.
(Picture on back page.)

The Chicago Federation of Labor yesterday declared war upon racketeers and gangsters who prey upon organized labor. The declaration was made in a front page editorial headed "Drive the Rascals Out," published in The Federation News.



John Fitzpatrick.

Because of the official character of this publication, the declaration has behind it the full authority of John Fitzpatrick, president of the federation since 1905. The editorial gave full support to THE TRIBUNE'S crusade against labor racketeers.

Cites Threat to Tribune Men.

The Federation News told of the anonymous letter sent THE TRIBUNE a few weeks ago in which threats of death and violence were made against Tribune writers who reported gangsters' domination and treasury looting of certain unions. This letter was printed in THE TRIBUNE of Aug. 23 with an editorial warning "Mr. Anonymous" that THE TRIBUNE would track him down if any member of The Tribune staff were molested.

"When a Chicago newspaper that has been conducting an exposé of rotten conditions in certain Chicago labor unions receives anonymous threats against its staff because of this, it is the utmost concern of every decent trades unionist in the city," the Federation News said.

"Indorsed by Every Honest Man."

"The campaign of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to spotlight for investigation those who prey on labor has the indorsement of every honest man and woman. No greater crime exists, in our opinion, than the willful pilfering of the workers by those to whom they look for help.

"While the Chicago Federation of Labor and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE do not always agree on what is best for labor, there can be no difference between us on the urgency of driving the rascals from the labor movement in Chicago and everywhere else. In this fight we welcome the support of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE or any other agency. We disown and denounce the type of individual who is resentful of it as an enemy of honest labor.

Called Most Dangerous Foes.

"Those pilferers of the trusting and innocent workers are the most dangerous enemies labor has today. There is no place in organized labor for the racketeer, the chiseler, the fixer, or the terrorist.

"On this Labor day we ask that Chicago's organized labor, with many years of honorable record behind it, rededicate itself to purging its ranks of the leeches who fatten at the expense of the workers."

Fitzpatrick and Secretary Joseph Keenan, with Secretary Victor Olander of the Illinois Federation of Labor, and Attorney Daniel Carmell, counsel for both of these labor organizations and for the American Federation of Labor, have been among the leaders who battled labor crooks.

Fitzpatrick recently forced the ouster from office in the federation of Charles F. Wills, business and circulation manager of the Federation News and the father-in-law of Max Caldwell, a former Capone gangster who is under investigation by the state's attorney's office in connection with his four year rule of the grocery clerks' union.

Within the federation there were groups who rallied to Wills' support and who sought to keep him in office. Failing in that, they were expected to work together to name Wills' successor on the executive committee of the federation. President Fitzpatrick is said to have shown his stand in the editorial.

Attorney Carmell said the Federation News announcement is a note of appreciation of the services of THE TRIBUNE in helping labor clean house. Olander said he concurred in the wording and spirit of the Labor day message to the AFL family of Chicagoland.

HURT IN BRAWL; TWO QUIZZED.

Carl Lauter, 56 years old, 2113 North Kedvale avenue, and Andrew Junger, 42, of 1542 North Kedzie avenue, were arrested by police yesterday for questioning about a brawl in which Henry Puetz, 52, of 1811 North Whipple street, suffered a suspected skull fracture.

Ginger Rogers of the films and Actor George Montgomery holding hands in a Hollywood night club.

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 31 [Special].—Ginger Rogers is reported by Hollywood to have found a new beau—maybe a husband. He is George Montgomery, young film actor. Ginger has asked him to be her guest at her ranch in Oregon. They have been seen together occasionally at dinner in the evening. But when approached on the subject, the two film people merely smile and have nothing to say. Miss Rogers, the 1941 Academy award winner, has been married twice. She divorced her first husband, E. J. Culpepper, in 1931. Her divorce from Lew Ayres, actor, became final on March 21 of this year.

BRITAIN FINDS IT PAYS TO GET MOST MEN THERE FIRST

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BAGDAD, Iraq, Aug. 29 [Delayed].—British forces are delighted with the quick effect produced on the Iranians [Persians] by their decisive move with a powerful force, it was said here today. For once, observers said, the British didn't try to do a job with an undersized force and as a result they have been rewarded with a quick and almost bloodless success.

The Iranians were not equipped to resist any modern army with mechanized equipment and aircraft. The British for the first time in any campaign had complete superiority in air strength and the effect was potent, tho more leaflets than bombs were dropped.

All British subjects in the country were safe and well except three killed at Adaban, it was announced. Those imprisoned have been released. Quick action by airborne troops protected many. Others were not harmed altho they were not protected.

Five of Family Believed Drowned in River Flood

Lowville, N. Y., Aug. 31 (AP).—Five persons were believed to have drowned and four others were rescued tonight when their car plunged into a Black river tributary thru a bridge which had been washed out during a cloudburst. Searchers abandoned hope for Mrs. Bruce Robbins, 34, three of her children and Stanley Robbins, a cousin of her husband. Bruce Robbins, two children and a hired man escaped thru the opened doors of the submerged machine.

BRITISH TRADE UNIONS TO CONSIDER SESSIONS WITH RUSSIAN LABOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 31.—Joint Russian and British trade union sessions, alternately meeting in London and Moscow, will be proposed by Sir Walter Citrine, general secretary of the Trades Union council, at the annual trade union congress conference opening in Edinburgh tomorrow. Almost unanimous approval is expected after a debate on Tuesday.

The congress will be asked to support the general council's decision to offer organized collaboration with the Russian trade union movement and to endorse the proposal that a British-Russian trade union council be formed with an equal number of representatives from each side.

Clement Attlee, lord privy seal, is scheduled to address the delegates. Latest figures show that the TUC membership is 5,079,904, an increase of 214,000 over last year.

Cool and Dry Labor Day Pledged by Weather Man

Today is expected to be cool and dry, according to Forecaster Gordon E. Dunn, who yesterday withdrew his previous threat of Labor day showers. Dunn said that the showers came early and as a result today's weather ought to be "about as good as any one can hope for." There probably will be a few clouds. The highest temperature is expected to be about 76 degrees.

FRANCE BECOMES ONE-PARTY STATE BY PETAIN ORDER

Puts Country on System Similar to Nazis'.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, Aug. 31.—Chief of State Henri Philippe Petain announced today the formation of a party to back up his government's work for reconstruction of defeated France.

Addressing 30,000 members of the French legion of war veterans in the Vichy stadium, he said the legion's ranks would be opened to "volunteers for the national revolution." This will enable all his supporters, not only former soldiers, to join.

Political observers declared the effect of Petain's declaration would be to make the legion, of which he is president, the only functioning political party of France. The country thus will become a one-party state, as are Germany and Italy.

1,200,000 in Legion.

The ex-soldier organization, which today thruout the unoccupied area commemorated the first anniversary of its founding, will be known as the Free Legion of Combatants and Volunteers for National Revolution. Heretofore the legion has had about 1,200,000 members, veterans of two wars.

Petain's declaration was made to the legionnaires at the climax of four days of ceremonies aimed to galvanize French patriotism behind his government after weeks of stern action against communists and foreign agents.

A manifesto read at the stadium and in 150 other cities pledged the legion's support to Petain and Admiral Jean Darlan, the vice premier.

Silence Critics, Petain Urges.

Petain replied:

"Let us rally to ourselves all those hesitating and dissatisfied people who have not understood our disaster and its consequence and continue to live in illusions of the past. I ask you to impose silence on our tumultuous critics. France has only one government and that is the one I direct with the collaborators of my own choosing. This government has only one policy, which is one concerned with French honor and interests."

[A Vichy broadcast heard yesterday in New York said Gen. Maxime Weygand, commander-in-chief for North Africa, and Auguste Nogues, governor of Algeria, had pledged their loyalty to Petain.]

Admiral William D. Leahy, United States ambassador, was present.

Former Vice Premier Pierre Laval and Marcel Deat, editor, shot last week by an assassin, were reported to be almost out of danger.

Singapore Political Agent Is Appointed by Australia

SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 31.—Sir Frederick Stewart, minister of external affairs, announced today that Vivian Gordon Bowden, Australian trade commissioner in Shanghai, China, had been appointed to represent the commonwealth as its political and commercial representative in Singapore. He will have authority to handle administrative questions and establish liaison with imperial and local civil authorities. Bowden is 57 years old.

VICHY SEIZES U. S. SOCIAL WORKER AS FOE OF NAZIS

Ouster of Relief Chief Is Balked by Spain.

CERBERE, France [At the Spanish frontier], Aug. 31 (AP).—The purge of dissidents thruout France and her Vichy-controled empire brought the arrest Friday at Marseilles of an American social worker, Varian M. Fry, who said he was charged with being "pro-Jewish and anti-Nazi."

Varian M. Fry.

Fry, head of the American Aid Center at Marseilles, an organization working among refugees, was confined overnight in jail there and then ordered to leave the country today. He came to Cerbere accompanied by two policemen and two members of his committee, but Spanish border officials would not let him cross because he had no Spanish transit visa.

Accused of Aiding Red.

Fry said that another charge against him was that he sent money to a communist in the course of his refugee work.

He was arrested, he said, just as he was back at his desk after a tour of several weeks in the unoccupied zone.

Fry explained that the American Aid Center is backed by important American organizations, including the New School for Social Research.

JAMES ROOSEVELT'S CLASSMATE.

In New York, Alvin Saunders Johnson, director of the New School for Social Research, said that Fry had been coöperating with the new school in aiding foreign scholars to leave southern France and reach the United States.

"Fry also was working with the Quakers to help refugees, and with the emergency refugee committee in France," Johnson said.

Harvard university records disclosed that Varian Mackey Fry received a degree there in 1930, the same year as James Roosevelt, son of the President. On June 2, 1931, he married Eileen A. Hughes, Boston. He was a member of the Harvard club and affiliated with Consumers Research.

AERIAL FORTRESS BOMBS BREMEN IN DAYLIGHT RAID

Sub-Stratosphere Craft Flies at 67 Below Zero.

LONDON, Aug. 31 (AP).—An American made fortress bomber flying in the substratosphere bombed the German port of Bremen in open daylight today, the air ministry announced, during a nonstop day-long continental offensive marking the royal air force's busiest day since the battle of Britain last fall.

"Our bombs fell in the middle of the port," the pilot, an Australian, reported. "There was no fire from anti-aircraft guns and we saw no fighters. Over the North sea we encountered a temperature of 67 degrees below zero [Fahrenheit]."

The air ministry declared there was little opposition of any kind from the Germans in the blazing offensive, which started at dawn and was going full blast tonight up and down the continental coast.

U-Boat Base Attacked.

The inland French industrial city of Lille, a German airdrome at Lannion, in Brittany; shipbuilding yards at Le Trait, near Rouen; the German submarine base at Brest, and rail communications at several points were among the targets.

Only two British fighters were reported lost in the day's operations and one German fighter was downed.

[Germany said yesterday its forces had downed 12 British planes, including 8 on the Dutch coast and 3 on the Norwegian coast. It admitted British planes penetrated northwest Germany on Saturday night. German planes, the high command said, bombed the southwest section of Ramsgate, at the mouth of the Thames; eastern harbor facilities, and airports in middle England.]

Gunfire Heard Near London.

Gunfire was heard in a London suburban area tonight but there was no sound of aircraft. London has been free of raid alarms since July 27.

German bombers assaulted a northeast coast town in the heaviest raid upon Britain since the bombing of Hull on July 17.

The RAF offensive today followed overnight assault upon German bases at Cherbourg and along the Netherlands coast.

Italian Cruiser Is Torpedoed by Submarine, British Claim

LONDON, Aug. 31 (AP).—A torpedo raid by a British submarine on an Italian naval squadron in the Mediterranean was reported today by the admiralty, and it implied that a 6 inch gun cruiser had been hit.

The Italian naval squadron, made up of three 6 inch gun cruisers, six destroyers and flying boats, was said to have been sighted at sea on the afternoon of Sunday, Aug. 24.

"An attack was made on the 6 inch gun cruisers," the admiralty said. "The severe counterattack which followed prevented the commanding officer of the submarine from observing the result of the explosion which followed the firing of his torpedoes."

Infer Only One Torpedo Hit.

From this reference to a single explosion, naval experts inferred that only one of the 1 ton missiles had struck its objective.

Sinking of four merchant vessels and damaging of a convoyed liner and a 4,000 ton Italian tanker were chalked up as definite victories of British underwater seamen over an unspecified period in give-and-take warfare between the African and European coasts.

British Bomb Tripoli.

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 31 (AP).—The whole of the Spanish mole at Tripoli was left aflame after a heavy British raid Friday night in which 25 tons of bombs were dropped, the RAF announced today.

Great clouds of smoke arose, apparently from burning oil stores, it was said, and two ships, one of 8,000 tons and another of 5,000 tons, were left blazing from stem to stern. Another smaller ship exploded and in subsequent hits a medium ship was set burning, the communique said. From the nearby Karamanli mole also flames spurted hundreds of feet into the air, and a fuel dump blew up.

Bomb Power Houses.

In an attack on Licata, Sicily, the British said direct hits were obtained on power houses and munitions factories, with debris thrown high into the air. Other raids were reported made at Bengazi, Berka, Bardia and Gerbini in North Africa.

British general headquarters told of a bayonet attack by patrols on axis outposts at Tobruk.

[In Rome yesterday the Italian high command said shrapnel bombs dropped by British aircraft killed four civilians and injured nine Saturday at Licata, and other raiders caused several casualties and some damage at Tripoli, the major axis base in Libya. The high command claimed destruction of three British bombers by Italian fighter craft and said German planes bombed British naval units in the besieged port of Tobruk, Libya.]

Chef Mysteriously Shot To Death in West Side Alley

Elefterios Kalofonos, 48 years old, 617 Madison street, a chef, was shot and fatally wounded early today by an unknown gunman in an alley in the rear of 21 North Peoria street. Police said robbery was not the motive. Kalofonos carried papers showing he was a native of Greece.

U. S. ISN'T GOING TO ENTER WAR, BRITAIN IS TOLD

London Press Stresses Change in Sentiment.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 31—Growing criticism in British newspapers and periodicals that America is derelict in extending aid to Britain is matched by other criticism—that Britain herself, by failing to establish a "second front" at whatever risks necessary, not only is neglecting her duty toward Russia but is jeopardizing her own chances for victory.

London's Sunday newspapers appeared to concentrate today on seeking to convince Britons that the United States will not enter the war.

The New York correspondent of the Sunday Dispatch declared "only 20 per cent of the American people would support a declaration of war today, according to polls of public opinion."

Stresses Change in America.

John Gordon, editor of the influential Sunday Express, in a signed editorial, told his readers that "changes are now taking place in American opinion which are not to our advantage."

"The current of American thought has set lately against partnership in our war," he continued. "The cold fit has succeeded the hot. It is useless to be disappointed with America. It is far better to try to understand American thought and be thankful for such aid as we are getting."

Beverly Baxter, conservative member of parliament, writing in the tabloid, Sunday Graphic, said "American aircraft production is gathering speed, but the wheels are not turning fast enough. Every one in the air force, both here and in the United States of America, knows that."

America, he added, "is with us to the last point short of belligerency."

Says Reds Can't Rout Nazis.

Baxter also said, "We can count on prolonged Russian resistance in one form or another, but we must not expect brave and battered armies of the soviet to drive the Germans back to Berlin."

Despite the efforts of certain newspapers to explain how President Roosevelt himself is unable to do more because of limitations of authority under the constitution, even the President does not escape reproach.

Following the definitely disappointing statement by President Roosevelt after his meeting with Prime Minister Winston Churchill that the Atlantic conference, so far as he could say, had not brought America closer to the war, attempts have been made to minimize the pessimistic interpretations of this phase.

Warns Against U. S. Reliance.

The London Times this week published on the editorial page a long letter from Philip Hewitt-Myring, well known journalist, author and literary critic, who, after carefully explaining and paralleling President Roosevelt's promise with those of Woodrow Wilson, warned Britons "to dispel acutely dangerous illusions," such as Minister of Home Security Herbert Morrison's phrase that all Britain had to do to win the war was to "hold on until American aid arrives in overwhelming force."

Pointing out that the "importance of congress is persistently underrated" by Britons and that "Roosevelt has to face the most bitter and determined opposition from vast and important sections of the American community," he criticizes the opinion expressed by many here that Britain is "not getting aid from America on the scale expected" and writes: "To any one acquainted with the American scene the wonder is not that we have had so little support . . . so far but that we have had so much." He said he is one of the few in Britain to hold this view.

Blame F. D. R. for "Bottleneck."

The Weekly Economist puts part of the blame on the President himself "for the manifest insufficiencies of the United States," and charges that "there is much overlapping of action and responsibility owing to the President's custom of setting up a new body for the new aspects of work without adequate definition of what each body's purpose is to be."

It continues: "There is a dangerous bottleneck at the very top on the President's desk." It refers to charges "of defective leadership" in America and says: "Here surely it is congress and behind congress the constitution that are to blame. Congress is obstructing the President." It adds, however, that "that is what the founding fathers designed congress to do.

The President, it says, "is like a man advancing to a goal across a quagmire. It is not surprising that he does not go forward with bold, unheeding stride."

The New English Weekly and New Age warns readers the "plain fact is Hitler, in forcing Russia into war, has, as he anticipated, gone a good way to keep America out," and gives two reasons, one, the opinion in America that Hitler already has bitten off more than he can chew in Russia, hence is not menacing the United States, and two, American abhorrence of communism.

Up to America to Decide.

Time and Tide says: "Of course we should like America to come in," but admits the "problem must be left for America to solve, but we need not pretend that what America decides to do is not as vitally interesting to us as to Hitler."

The New Statesman and Nation writes that despite President Roosevelt's rebuke to senators and newspapers for "spreading alarmist rumors on United States arms output," his own figures "of some 61 anti-aircraft guns, 72 anti-tank guns, and less than 500 operational aircraft, in addition to about a thousand trainers, is almost as shocking as the charges of Senator Byrd [D., Va.]."

It declares, however, that until "we have succeeded in mobilizing ourselves completely," Britain herself is unable to tell Americans what to do and "magnificent words" will be "unmasked by subsequent events."

Demand "Second Front."

The cry for more aid to Russia and creation of a second front to help the new ally is echoed in practically the entire press. Moscow reports say that "Russians are looking somewhat puzzled toward Britain and the United States," and the London Times, Sunday Times, Evening Standard, Star, the News Chronicle, Sunday Express, News of the World, and Reynolds News are demanding more vigorous action on the part of Britain.

The New Statesman and Nation says: "Three quarters of the vast German army is locked in Russia; it would seem a unique opportunity. If we cannot invade Europe on any front today how can we ever hope to do so in the future."

Occupation of Iran, however, is hailed as opening new direct communications between the British and Russian fighting forces. "Now we can send aid to Russia," asserts a streamer headline in the Sunday Pictorial and this sentiment is echoed in other papers.

ELLIS AND TAUSSIG, BOTH REAR ADMIRALS, RETIRE FROM NAVY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31 (AP).—Two distinguished naval careers ended today with the retirement of Rear Admiral Joseph K. Taussig, a hero of the Peking relief expedition, and Rear Admiral Hayne Ellis, former commander of the Atlantic squadron. The rank of vice admiral was conferred on Admiral Taussig simultaneously with his retirement, and the secretary of the navy wrote to both officers and congratulated them upon their service. Both are 64 years old.

Rear Adm. Ellis [top] and Rear Adm. Taussig.

Taussig, who was born in Germany, received special commendation for combat duty in the Boxer rebellion in 1900. He commanded the first division of United States destroyers sent abroad in the World war.

Ellis also served in China in the Boxer rebellion and in the Philippines. Since January he has been a member of the navy's general board.

21 Canadian Airmen Hurt by Explosion in Canteen

CALGARY, Alta., Aug. 31 (AP).—Twenty-one men of the Royal Canadian air force were injured here last night when a gas explosion shattered the west wing of the airmen's canteen and No. 2 equipment depot in East Calgary.

WORLD EYEING U. S.-JAPANESE FENCING MATCH

door principle, which the Japanese have flouted.

The genesis of the negotiations is shrouded in secrecy. They materialized immediately after the high seas conference of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, at which measures for dealing with Japan were discussed.

Implement United States Policy.

These measures manifestly implement the American policy, announced by Churchill, whereby the United States takes the lead in combatting Japanese threats to British interests in the Pacific and Great Britain agrees to support the United States if it should get into a war with Japan in the course of its defense of British interests.

Thus the negotiations may have been initiated by Mr. Roosevelt, springing from the necessity of the British to get Japan neutralized in order to permit the withdrawal of the American fleet to the Atlantic for a grand assault on Germany.

On the other hand the negotiations may have been sought by Japan, which has been hard hit by the American economic sanctions and may have been convinced by the formation of the Anglo-American alliance and by the Nazis' slow progress against Russia that the axis is doomed to defeat.

THE 'NEXT OF KIN' IN BRITAIN CAN'T EVEN SHOW GRIEF

LONDON, Aug. 31 (AP).—". . . The next of kin have been informed . . ."

Behind that sentence by which Britain announces the death of her soldiers, sailors, and airmen lies one of the grimmest situations of the war—the silent, inward suffering of the living who may not even disclose their mourning.

Here is what happens. A naval officer's ship is sunk. The admiralty quietly informs the wife or parents but impresses on them that nothing can be said about it. "It might give information to the enemy," is the counsel.

The wife, or parents—or often the fiancée—must smile and carry on in the normal way. They go thru dozens of trying scenes.

"What do you hear from John?"

"When's Bill getting leave?"

These are questions for which no truthful and yet obediently patriotic answer can be given.

Only after the government issues a communique describing a particular action may the bereaved tell of their losses.

ROTC HEAD TALKS AT 5TH DIVISION ANNUAL BANQUET

Two hundred war veterans representing every state attended the annual banquet of the Society of the Fifth Division in the Hotel Sherman last night. The principal speaker was Col. John T. Rhett, head of all ROTC activities in the Chicago area. A 5th division banner, bearing the official insignia was presented to the society by Joseph H. Fenus, vice president of the Chicago camp. The meeting will continue thru today.

VANQUISHED IRAN TOLD ANGLO-RED PEACE PACT NEAR

U. S. Envoy Acts to Keep 700 Germans Safe.

TEHERAN, Iran, Aug. 31 (AP).—The vanquished government of Iran announced today the expectation that British-Russian military operations would stop and "the cause for the peoples' anxiety will soon be removed" as a result of talks with allied representatives.

United States Minister Louis G. Dreyfus Jr. accepted a rôle of intermediary at the request of German Minister Ettel to insure the safety of 700 German nationals harbored at the summer legation in Shemran.

[The British radio quoted the Reuters news agency as stating that well informed sources in Simla declared: "The German community, apart from the legation and some technicians, will have to leave within a week. . . . The allies will reaffirm that the measures taken were not directed against Iran, but against the menace of German intrigues in the country."]

Reds Drop Leaflet "Bombs."

Fifteen soviet bombers showered propaganda leaflets in the French language over the tense capital for an hour and 45 minutes today as the government considered British-Russian peace terms.

Explosions were heard in the vicinity of a naval airport at Doshan Tappeh, northeast of Teheran, and a cement factory to the southeast. The causes were not announced.

Sources close to Iran's royal family said the ruler, Riza Khan Pahlevi, had sent his children to Isfahan, 200 miles south of Teheran, but remained himself at Saadabad palace near the capital.

Foreign sources said three zones would be established under British-Russian plans, with Teheran placed in the central zone under nominal Iran-allied control.

Russians would control Caspian Azerbaijane and small sections of two other border provinces exclusively while the British keep to the southwest, tho as far inland as Kerman, 300 miles north of the Gulf of Oman which leads to the Indian ocean.

[Foreign diplomatic sources at Ankara, Turkey, said British and Russians were expecting to occupy the 600 mile trans-Iran railroad from the Persian gulf to the Caspian, oil field centers, and Teheran.

[At Simla informed circles said provisions to facilitate the movement of war materials to Russia—in which the trans-Iran railway would be vital—were to be included in peace terms to be submitted to Iran soon.]

Red and Iran Forces Meet.

MOSCOW, Aug. 31 (AP).—Red army and Iranian army units were reported today to have met peacefully under the invasion armistice.

A dispatch to the army publication, Red Star, said a soviet cavalry force which entered the northern town of Meshed Friday, a day ahead of schedule, found the 9th Iranian infantry division encamped there.

It was officially announced that soviet columns had reached Resht on the Caspian sea, 150 miles northwest of Teheran; Zenjan, inland 180 miles from the capital, and Shahrud, 210 miles northwest of the seat of the government.

3 INVALID WOMEN SLAIN; MATE OF ONE DIES IN FIGHT

Fort Worth, Tex., Aug. 31 (AP).—A shooting and subsequent gun battle in which police and an elderly resident participated left three women dead, a man fatally wounded, and a radio patrolman critically wounded tonight.

The slayings occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Driskill. The slain women were:

Mrs. Driskill, 69, Mrs. Fannie Moore, 65, of Dallas, her sister, who was a guest at the home, and Mrs. Ola Jordan, Arlington, a niece of Mrs. Driskill, also visiting her. All were invalids.

Driskill, 73, was shot and killed by city detectives, who went to the house when a woman telephoned for help. One of them, John L. Nash, was shot by Driskill.

AMERICAN WAY OF LIFE UPSETS STAID BERMUDA

Island Is Jolted by Social and Economic Upheaval.

This is the second of a series of stories by Mr. Fulton on conditions and relations among native Bermudians, British residents and war workers, and American military forces and workers on the American base which is being constructed in Bermuda.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Aug. 31.—American infiltration into this little coral island colony, where a mighty fortress is being raised for defense of the western hemisphere, has created serious social and economic problems. The impact of the American way of life on the Bermudian way of life is something terrific.

In the colony's lush days the only Americans who came here were the playing, dancing, drinking, and spending tourists. Bermudians were more than satisfied to receive with open arms that breed of genus Americana.

But today this easy going, quaint island community is being forced to play host to the hard-bitten American workman, the rollicking sailor, the blunt spoken marine, the tough conscript. Tourists, who once brought in 85 per cent of Bermuda's income, are a negligible quantity now.

Rape-Slaying Shocks Island.

Bermuda was shocked by its first rape-murder case in history in July when Miss Margaret Allanora Stapleton, an Englishwoman and a member of the imperial censorship staff, was attacked and killed with a sawed-off baseball bat. The crime is unsolved.

One prominent Bermuda business man told this correspondent his wife had been chased home on her bicycle one night by a man who looked like an American construction worker. Another disclosed he was sending his 17 year old daughter to New York.

Naval officials said most of the stories about married women being approached and about similar occurrences were made up out of whole cloth, originating over the "shed wireless." This is a new local slang phrase to denote any phony rumor starting in the vicinity of the No. 1 shed on Hamilton docks and growing in size as it spreads around the colony.

Cars Source of Irritation.

Another source of irritation is the motor car question. Bermuda in the past has banned all automobiles. Transportation was by foot, bicycle, carriage [at $2 an hour] or by a single, rickety scenic railroad that runs from one end of the island to the other every two hours or so. Thus was preserved the community's old world flavor on which tourists always have doted.

Along came hemisphere defense and this spring the assembly was forced to empower the governor to grant permission for urgent use of motor vehicles on the defense bases. There have been complaints since that the Americans were tearing up the highways and demands that they pay for their repair.

Bermudians, who have no access to automobiles themselves, are charging that American officers are using official cars for other than official purposes.

How Legislators See It.

The Hon. J. D. B. Talbot, speaking in legislative council on July 15, declared: "There is considerable criticism at the present time as to the manner in which motor vehicles are being used thruout the islands. It is a fact that cars are being used for purposes other than the construction and maintenance of the bases."

The Hon. K. F. Trimingham agreed that if the colony is to depend once more on the tourist trade after the war "we are better off without motor cars than we are with them." He pleaded, however, that this was a transition period and people should not get "worked up."

But the Hon. E. P. T. Tucker was explosive in his comment. He said the Americans were using the official cars "for purchasing groceries, for taking children to school, for sports, all due to a state of emergency."

"They are going thru the town raising hell on Sunday and all hours of the night, at 12 o'clock and 2 o'clock in the morning," continued the Hon. Tucker. "However, it is part of the game and the part we have to play in this war."

Another assemblyman asserted it was a "disgrace to the American army and navy in this country today the way their men are carrying on. In an hilarious way they are riding about 15 to 20 in cars. These cars are running at any speed they like. Either repeal the motor car act or tell these people to build their own roads."

This charge was denied to this correspondent by Capt. Jules James of the United States navy, commandant of the Bermuda station, whose wife, incidentally, is the niece of Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson. Capt. James said no cars are driven faster than 15 miles an hour, the speed limit under the colony's laws.

According to Capt. James, the naval officials have had "splendid coöperation from the Bermudians on the big things which concern the building of the base facilities and supplying of the fleet, but in the case of little things which have a commercial angle there has been nagging and sniping."

Merchants Denied Cars.

Sixteen Bermuda merchants applied for the use of motor vehicles recently and contemptuously referred to the automobile ban as a "horse and buggy" policy. They were turned down by the assembly, as was the head of the department of public works when he made a similar request.

A chronic irritant has been the controversy over duties on goods coming into the army and navy bases. The Americans have contended the local government could not collect customs duties on these articles because the basic agreement, under which the land and water rights were leased, exempted such imports.

Nevertheless, Bermuda's customs in the month of July yielded $200,000 in American money, the biggest monthly return in the colony's history.

Some Rents Up 150 Per Cent.

With the influx of American easy money, rents have skyrocketed. Increases as high as 150 per cent have been recorded. S. S. Toddings lamented in the assembly recently that some residents of Bermuda were unable to obtain a roof over their heads and were sleeping under the cedar trees.

The 200 residents of St. David's Island whose homes and farms are being taken from them and the dispossessed land owners in other leased areas are demanding from $2,100 to $5,000 an acre before the arbitration board, considerably more than the price of land in these sections several years ago.

Bermuda's labor supply and wage scales have been turned topsy turvy since the arrival of American workmen, who are paid at the prevailing wages back home.

Derrick and crane operators on the base construction jobs are paid $1.62½ an hour. With overtime, however, the salaries of many of the workers amount to more than $100 a week. Comparable skilled workers in Bermuda are paid $40 or $50 a week.

Wages have been raised thruout Bermuda, but help becomes more scarce every day.

[Another story by Mr. Fulton on Bermudian-British-American relations in Bermuda will appear in an early issue.]

MAIL SCHOOL PARSON TRIED TO SEIZE HER, SECOND GIRL ASSERTS

The Rev. Stanley Lund, the correspondence school minister, held by the Jefferson Park police for accosting and kissing young women, was identified yesterday by Miss Elisselotte Rothfahn, 20 years old, 4415 North Marmora avenue, as the man who attempted to drag her into his automobile last June. She told Capt. Patrick O'Connell that the minister, who is 28 years old, confronted her early in the morning in front of her home, but was frightened away by her screams.

Lund, who was ordained by mail as a minister of the Independent Assembly of God four years ago, was arrested early Saturday after he seized Miss Evelyn Kindstrand, 21, of 3537 Plainfield avenue, near her home and threw her into his car.

Lund admitted grabbing Miss Kindstrand and also told Capt. O'Connell he had enticed eight other girls in recent months into his car, talked with them in secluded spots, and then kissed them. He is married and the father of an 11 month old baby. His church is the Riverview Gospel tabernacle in Des Plaines.

CHANDLER URGES END OF DEBATE ON WAR-PEACE ISSUE

Follow President, He Says at St. Charles.

Wheeler Speaks

Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], vigorous noninterventionist leader, will speak tonight at the 37th annual fall festival in St. Charles. The speech will be broadcast by W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system at 8:30 p. m. Wheeler's talk will be sponsored by the America First committee.

Senator A. B. [Happy] Chandler [D., Ky.], yesterday urged that debate on the momentous war or peace issue be halted in a speech at the fall festival in Pottawattomie park in St. Charles. Chandler spoke in behalf of the Fight for Freedom committee, which wants this nation to enter the European war at once.

Police said a crowd of 700 people sat on the grassy slope in front of the speaking stand to listen to Senator Chandler, with another 200 or 300 at the sides.

Mrs. Cecile Cornell, in charge of an America First booth in the park, said she disposed of "armsful" of literature to persons who had just finished listening to Chandler.

Says Time for Debate Is Past.

"I believe the time for argument in the country is past," Chandler said. "I do not believe any citizen who serves his country will undertake now to impede or delay the President's program in the face of the manifestation of danger.

"As loyal Americans, our course is clear, and I do not intend by word or deed to give any aid or comfort to any enemy of my country.

"The only language Hitler and his associates understand is the language of the tank, the airplane, the battleship, and the machine gun. If we are to have a return of peace to the world in our time, it is my belief that this can best be accomplished by supporting the foreign policy of the President."

Chandler assailed Senator Wheeler, Norman Thomas, Senator Gerald K. Nye [R., D. N.], and Charles A. Lindbergh. He echoed the interventionist demand for "unity," without reference to the results of polls which show public opinion overwhelmingly against entry into the war.

Need "National Solidarity."

"We need a national solidarity, a national unity of all classes, all religions, and all ages, at the cost of sacrifice of possessions and property, and maybe life itself," Chandler said. "Only those prepared to die may win for themselves the right to live."

He said he does not believe that President Roosevelt "desires" to take this country into war. On the other hand, Chandler considered American entrance into the war as more than possible.

"Senator Wheeler and his associates tell us we are alarmed about an imaginary peril," Chandler said. "Fifteen victim nations in Europe, besides those who are now fighting, are evidences to the contrary. We are advised that we should wait—and then be isolated and conquered when all our remaining allies are gone. The supreme triumph of the isolationists would then be accomplished, that is, isolation."

MAKE ILLINOIS NATION'S FLYING CENTER: CROSS

(Picture on back page.)

A prediction that Chicago and the surrounding area soon will become the airport center of America was made yesterday by Lieut. Gov. Hugh Cross, speaking at the Chicago Air maneuvers at the newly expanded Elmhurst airport.

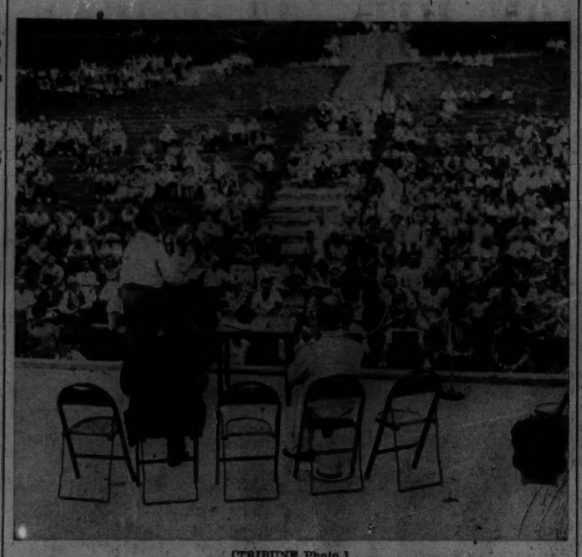
Lieut. Gov. Hugh Cross.

"What we need in Illinois today are bigger and better airports," Cross said. "Altho we are geographically situated to become the aviation center of the country, we are sorely in need of adequate and safe ground facilities. Moline and Chicago are now the only cities of the state where commercial and air mail planes are permitted to stop."

The lieutenant governor reported that Peoria probably would complete an airport within a month and Springfield within a year. He praised recent improvements at Chicago airport and voiced a hope that a lake front airport might become a reality in the early future.

Senator Chandler Speaks

(Story in adjoining column.)



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Small crowd hears Senator A. B. (Happy) Chandler (D., Ky.), supporter of administration war policy, in Pottawattomie park in St. Charles yesterday. He asked that debate on the war and peace issue be halted for the sake of "unity."

BROOKS URGES DEFENSE NO ONE CAN PENETRATE

Appears with Stritch at Church Fete.

(Picture on back page.)

Senator Wayland Brooks of Illinois yesterday urged the American people to make their defenses so strong that no foreign power would dare attack this nation, but warned against sending American boys to die in foreign wars.

The senator and Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch were the principal speakers at the 50th anniversary jubilee of St. Joseph's Catholic church in Joliet.

"Ancient hatreds in Europe are burning in flames," Senator Brooks told the audience of 1,000. "We should be glad we are over here.

Unity on Defense.

"Freedom of religion is an institution common only to our form of government. We will die to protect our philosophy of government. But there is a question now as to how far we should spread our forces.

"In Washington there is complete unity as to national defense, as there is thruout the country. We want to make our nation so strong that no one will ever dare to attack us.

"But we cannot spread our forces all over the world and remain strong enough at home to maintain a country where freedom of religion is an accepted fact.

"The heart of America is with the oppressed. But I voice my opposition to sending our sons overseas to die."

Crowd Applauds Him.

The crowd roared an ovation to Senator Brooks at the close of his plea to keep out of foreign wars.

Archbishop Stritch said:

"This is a trying world in which we are living. And it is time to examine the national conscience, and rid it of certain growths and rusts.

"Freedom rests upon the proper definition of a man, and not a man without a soul, not a regimented man, such as they are trying to establish in Europe."

Later in the day Senator Brooks delivered a second speech in the picnic grounds at Riverside. He told a Berwyn Republican group of several hundred that, altho he had opposed passage of the lease-lend bill, then supported it after passage, "the picture has now changed."

Democracy and Stalin.

"Now," he said, "we have Joe Stalin. Can you mention democracy and Stalin in the same breath? Joe Stalin has no sympathy for our philosophy of government. And when the war is over, supposing we enter it, where will we be? We and our sons will have fought and paid for it as we did the last war. But after the last war a group of power politicians sat around and decided the peace terms, not on the basis of what was best for the people they represented, but each one taking into account only his own selfish interests."

FOUND SHOT TO DEATH.

Clarence Gehner, 35 years old, was found shot to death yesterday, evidently by his own hand, in his apartment at 1610 Sheridan road, North Chicago.

JUDGE JONAS CAN EARN A PENSION WITH BRIEF TERM

As a result of his appointment by Gov. Dwight H. Green to a vacancy on the Superior court bench, Attorney Edgar A. Jonas of Chicago will become eligible to a pension of $3,750 a year after he reaches the age of 60 if he serves out only the short term to which he was named.

Legislative revision of the judicial pension system earlier this year provided annuities of one-fourth pay for all persons who are judges on or after Nov. 1, 1941, when they pass the 60 year mark and leave the bench. Attorney Jonas is now 55 years old. Even if he is replaced in the Nov. 4 election he will be entitled five years from now to the annuity for the rest of his life because he served on the Municipal bench from 1924 to 1936.

Gov. Green's new appointee will arrive in Chicago from California this afternoon.

GREEN EXPECTED TO GIVE VIEWS ON COALITION TODAY

G. O. P. Has Only a Week to Decide Stand.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Republican politics will warm up at the annual picnic in Riverview park this afternoon under the auspices of the party's Cook county central committee.

Much more than the normal interest has been aroused by expectations that Gov. Dwight H. Green, who will share the central spot on the program with Senator Wayland Brooks, will formally declare his attitude toward coalition in the judicial election on Nov. 4.

This is the one election this year and topic of a Democratic-Republican slate has been brought to the front early by the poll recently announced by the Chicago Bar association and by a belief, based on an interview with Mayor Kelly, that the Democrats may effect coalition even without the consent of the Republican organization.

Expect Party to Follow Green.

If Gov. Green's declaration at the picnic is one that can be interpreted as his telling the county judicial convention—consisting of the 80 members of the county committee—what he wants it to do, the convention will follow those instructions unless he modifies them later.

It is believed by some of his political associates, however, that the governor will not go that far, that he may confine his utterances to a renewed declaration against having any dealings with the Kelly-Nash machine, his chief target in both his mayoralty campaign in 1939 and his governorship race last year.

G. O. P. Convention Sept. 8.

Definite orders from him, in the eyes of county organization leaders, would mean that the Republican convention would have to put up a complete Republican ticket regardless of the coalition developments.

The Republican convention is one week from today, Sept. 8. The Democratic convention is four days later, Sept. 12.

The speechmaking is scheduled to start at 2:45 p. m. Senator Brooks, Attorney General George F. Barrett, and Edward F. Moore, former chairman of the Republican county committee, will precede Gov. Green on the platform. The governor's speech will be broadcast by station WBBM from 3:45 to 4 p. m.

Gov. Green announced yesterday the appointment of William H. Murphy of Golf, Ill., as supervisor of the small loans division of the state insurance department.

QUOTING ABRAHAM LINCOLN

A Progressive Labor System.

When one starts poor, as most do in the race of life, free society is such that he knows he can better his condition; he knows that there is no fixed condition of labor for his whole life. I am not ashamed to confess that 25 years ago I was a hired laborer, mauling rails, at work on a flatboat—just what might happen to any poor man's son. I want every man to have a chance . . . when he may look forward and hope to be a hired laborer this year and the next, work for himself afterward, and finally to hire men to work for him. That is the true system.

THE CONSPIRATORS WORK IN THE DARK.

The people who heard Col. Lindbergh's open air speech outside of Oklahoma City or who read it may wonder again why an American wanting to make such an address to his fellow citizens should have been denied the use of the public auditorium by the city council. Even persons who do not see with Col. Lindbergh or share his opinions will join in the wonder if those Oklahoma authorities are at all interested in the preservation of American rights and privileges.

The censors in Oklahoma City, as in some other communities where there are war party authorities, undertook to prevent the discussion of a question of paramount importance—the grave question of war—upon which the people are not being truthfully informed by their own government. They are being deceived and they are being kept in the dark. They are apprehensive and distrustful for very good cause.

A great many of them are opposed to the ultimate purposes of Mr. Roosevelt's foreign policy, and the war party's strategy is to whip up excitement, cry false alarms, and denounce opposition as disloyal. Three-fourths of the people of the United States can't be disloyal to themselves, and they constitute the country to which loyalty is required.

The movements in the dark which have been characteristic of the efforts to go to war might be more successful if there were a complete censorship of opinion and news as well. Would any American in his right mind say that Col. Lindbergh had no right to give such opinions as he did to the people? They know when he speaks of aviation he does so with the highest authority of all.

Here in the midwest the war makers are trying to stage rehearsals of air raid precautions, borrowing the silly idea from the silly war makers on the Atlantic seaboard. The people's common sense may tell them that this is idiotic except as it is intended to spread excitement. Busybodies with ulterior purposes are trying to make fools of the people. These false alarms are the equivalent of false reports. The antidote to them is a discussion of facts.

If the censors serving the incendiaries in this country had their way, if they could deprive people of free speech and free circulation of information, the dark conspiracy would have conditions more favorable to it. Because of an opposition that refuses to be terrorized and refuses to be muzzled, the people are seeing the question in its true light and they are not being deceived by the conspirators. The war makers are aware of this and it has slowed them down. They know the verdict is against them.

The political liberties of the people have not been extinguished as yet and congress at last is being impressed by the rising tide of resentment. The American people in their political processes may yet find their protection and security if they can save their own republic.

WHY THEY BOOED LUCAS.

When Senator Lucas at the state convention of the American Legion likened Wendell Willkie to Stephen A. Douglas, a good many of the Legionnaires responded with boos. That raises the question whether the booing was directed at Douglas, Willkie, or Mr. Lucas himself.

We think Douglas can safely be dismissed from consideration. He has a good name in Illinois, tho he was Lincoln's opponent for the senatorship and the Presidency. He is remembered with pride because he tried to keep the nation at peace and continued to strive for peace until the flag had been fired upon.

It is possible that the booing was meant for Mr. Willkie. As a self-confessed utterer of insincere campaign promises, he isn't popular. The Legionnaires might justly have resented the comparison of so distinguished a son of Illinois as Douglas to the self-discredited Willkie.

The greater probability is that the delegates were merely seizing an opportunity to indicate their sentiment toward Mr. Lucas himself. The burden of his speech was the old stuff that this country is in danger of invasion and conquest by the Nazis. The Legionnaires know that to be hogwash, intended to frighten the American people into entering a war which, like the last one, will cost far more than the people of this country can expect to gain from it. The members of the Legion have reason to know that German armies are not invincible. They know that with a respectable bombing force, to say nothing of our navy or army, we can keep Hitler on his side of the Atlantic ocean.

Mr. Lucas no longer thinks and talks like a midwesterner. He has gone eastern. He has alienated himself from Illinois. It should surprise no one if, at the end of his term, he were to settle in the east, where he now feels at home and where he finds a congenial society.

MAD COUNSEL.

The speeches of John E. Mack and Farmer Smith at Hyde Park Saturday night were not the speeches of sane men. Their excitements passed the bounds of hysteria. They were pathological.

It is terrible to contemplate that the President is living and acting in such an atmosphere.

In this tragic situation the country must look to congress for protection. The 80 per cent of our people who are Americans undefiled by foreign seductions must bring their influence to bear on congress and the executive.

A MOMENTOUS ELECTION.

The importance of the overwhelming majority—nearly 2 to 1—registered against war in the by-election held in the 1st Wisconsin district on Friday can hardly be exaggerated. Here the will of a typical American constituency was tested on the question of war or peace, the most important political question which has faced our people since the election of 1864.

The political leaders of both parties have had their eyes on the 1st Wisconsin district for many weeks. The area is the southeastern corner of the state with a population well divided between industry and agriculture. The district includes, besides such manufacturing centers as Kenosha, Racine, Janesville, and Beloit, a prosperous farming region. Here in this typical section of America the test of strength between the war party and the peace party was staged.

This was no privately managed sampling of public opinion for profit. This was no attempt to guess from a few dozen informal interviews the judgment of tens of thousands of voters. This was the real thing. The people had to choose as their representative in congress either Mr. Lawrence H. Smith, the Republican, who is against a declaration of war, against meddling, against intervention in Europe; or Mr. Thomas R. Amlie, a New Deal jobholder, who was drafted to run for congress because he would follow the administration wherever it might lead, including into war.

There was no trimming on either side. The issue was as clear as it could be made. Smith was the candidate opposed to war. He received 29,657 votes. Amlie was the candidate of the war party. He received 16,942. Every representative, every senator, every diplomat in Washington, and every member of the administration has read the result.

The victory of Mr. Smith will hearten the men in congress who have resisted the drift toward war. The influence of this election will be particularly marked, of course, among the members from the middle west. The 64 representatives from this section who voted against the extension of the draft now know that their people are with them and the 12 who voted for the extension now know that their political future is in jeopardy unless they change their course. The vote in the house on the test question a few weeks ago was as close as it could have been—203 to 202. It is to be expected that the election of Mr. Smith will go far to establish a firm majority for peace in congress.

That is why we said before that the importance of this election cannot be exaggerated. The people of the 1st Wisconsin district had an opportunity such as comes to few men and women in the long history of a nation. A million lives were in their keeping. If the vote had been for Amlie and war, the administration would have regarded the election as a signal to throw off all restraints and concealments. Had Amlie won, it would have been a matter of days only before the expeditionary force would have been on the way to Europe. The America which we have known would have been doomed and no one now living would have seen it restored in its freedom, its progress, its prosperity, and its independence.

The men and women voters of the 1st Wisconsin district who gave the victory to Mr. Smith have done much to save the young men of their country from death and themselves from impoverishment. The victory will be long remembered with gratitude.

LOST IN THE BIG WOODS.

The 2d battalion of the 185th infantry got lost in the woods of the Deep river valley a few days ago during the maneuvers on the west coast. The force of some 600 men had been ordered to make a flank attack. They didn't locate the enemy position and spent most of their time trying to find their way back to camp. One soldier fell and broke his arm. All of them were hungry and exhausted. They had started out with only two days' supply of rations and were lost for three days.

Upon their return, the officers said their maps had been faulty and their compasses had proved of little value. That is an old story and, even if true, not an adequate explanation. Woodsmen seldom get lost in the woods and, when they do, they don't stay lost whether or not they have maps and whether or not they have compasses. The trouble with these officers was that they weren't woodsmen.

They should not be too severely blamed. There are men in the army who know the big woods as a suburbanite knows his garden. Such men can be found by a little questioning and testing and such men should be placed in command of expeditions like this one. A considerable share of the blame for the misadventure surely attached to the higher command which didn't make sure that woodsmen were assigned to a task which only woodsmen could be counted upon to carry out successfully.

CHANCE FOR ADVANCEMENT.

[Topeka Capital.]

According to statistics published by the United States war department, a recruit joining the army has a chance of one in four to become a corporal, at least, with his pay advanced to $54 a month. There is a one to one hundred chance that a private will become a lieutenant receiving $125 a month plus living allowances. Out of each 1,000 men, 276, or approximately 28 per cent, are in line for advancement in rank either as commissioned, noncommissioned, or warrant officers, all of which call for an increase in pay. Out of this same 1,000, 307 or 31 per cent, are advanced to first class privates whose pay is $36 a month. It is well that the army provides this opportunity for advancement on merit of the individual soldier. It helps to maintain morale and that is one of the things most sorely needed in this man's army.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

THE LORE OF SEPTEMBER.

September: A month that contains the kindly afterglow of summer and the stimulating entrance of autumn, celebrated for its fine weather almost everywhere in the north temperate zone, and especially in Chicago. So-called because it was the seventh month in the old Roman calendar, which began the year with March.

Famous for the Labor day week-end, the feeding of men's straw hats to the cows, the reopening of schools and colleges, the start of the football season, the renewal of wardrobes, the yearning of women for mink coats, denials by weather bureaus that there is any such thing as an equinoctial storm, the equal division of day and night on the 23d, the appearance of topcoats, the end of vacations, the migration of birds, red and yellow leaves on trees, and a general sense that life is worth living, wars or no wars.

September Bible: A name for Luther's German translation of the New Testament, published anonymously in September, 1522.

September Morn: The title of a painting by Paul Chabas of an undressed girl shivering in a pool, which caused an international furor back in 1912. Color prints of it were seen everywhere; Puritans protested, and the public admired. Its aftermath included a musical comedy of the same title, staged at the La Salle theater, Chicago; score by Aubrey Stauffer.

September massacres: The slaughter by French revolutionists of about 8,000 loyalists and aristocrats in the prisons of Paris, Sept. 2 to 5, 1792, ordered by a demagog, bursting with ideals, named Danton.

September elm: A tree of the southeastern states, said to bloom in the autumn; also called the red elm.

In other languages: French, Septembre; German, September; Spanish, Septiembre; Italian, Settembre; Latin, September; ancient Greek [Athenian], Boedromion; French revolution, Fructidor.

AUTUMN AT THE DOOR.

Hold fast this beauty of September days
Before October's breath on jeweled gardens lays
A chilling kiss. Before the cricket's tune
Is stilled beneath an amber harvest moon,
While bees still hum and gardens waft their musk
About old vines that cling in prescient dusk,
(Like weary lovers to their youth, long spent,)
To crumbling walls and latchless gates, and bent;
Hold fast this beauty, garner in its store,
For imminent old Autumn stands at Summer's door.

A True Story of Arizona.

About 5 in the afternoon a bloody-faced Navajo rode a tired pony up to the doctor's office, dismounted, and staggered inside. The doctor got busy quickly, cleaned and sewed up a bad scalp wound, and listened to the Navvie's story about how his Model T had turned over on Waterloo hill several times. He had borrowed a pony at a nearby hogan and had ridden 20 miles for medical attention. In finishing his dressing job the doctor said, "Son, it's too bad you've lost your ear." The Navajo felt his head and demanded a mirror. Sure enough, no ear on the left side. He thanked the doctor and rode off.

Next morning the doctor glanced out his front window and the Indian was sitting on his front steps. He called the lad in, and the poor Navajo opened a bandanna, displayed his lost ear and said, "Here, put 'um back on." Adrian of Arizona.

Rare Item in Roadside Signs.

There is a crossroad settlement called Chuckville near Lake Geneva—three or four houses, a store, and a trailer adjunct. As you approach you catch the name and population boldly displayed on a roadside board. On Aug. 22 it read, "Population 10." The day before it read 17. Each day it is changed. Once it went up to 27. ENNUI IN SEPTEMBER.

I am weary of statesmen's chatter,
I would dwell where no problems stalk;
There's nothing I lack
So much as a shack
Where no human monsters walk;
There'd be dreaming there,
And no seeming there,
And my heart would have time to talk.

I am weary of drudging noontides,
I long for the whirr of wings
Where the autumn calls
To primeval halls
Of joy; where the whips and stings
Of man's sad lot
Are all forgot
In a realm of woods and springs.

I am spent with the nations' warring;
I yearn for some quiet shore
Where no royal pawn
Can pervert the dawn
With his talk of battle gore.
With the winter spanned
I shall seek some land
Where my wings can spread once more.

WEAR A GIRDLE IN EMPHYSEMA.

SOME of us—as we approach middle life—may be disturbed by overstretched air sacs. The lungs become less elastic and, in consequence, both breathing and the in and out flow of blood may be impeded. There seems to be no difficulty in getting "ozone" into the area. The trouble comes when we try to push it out. The reason is that the springlike recoil of the tissues has been decreased and the muscles of the chest and the diaphragm, therefore, have to do more work.

Let us suppose that the job cannot be done thoroly. There isn't quite the same normal to and fro movement that occurred—let us say—10 years before. What happens? Will the lungs retain more used up air than they should? Yes! The quantity which remains may be twice as large. It fills up the ballooned out cells. Thus it is that respiration may become a fatiguing process.

This state of affairs, however, comes so gradually, so slowly, that the patient is not aware of what is going on. He adjusts himself to the situation without discomfort and this may continue for years.

Later, there may come a time when the circulation will raise some objections, with signs of weakness on the right side of the heart. When this occurs the victim may be in real distress—with cardiac enlargement and a high blood pressure in the pulmonary arteries. This interferes with the natural pumping action of the lungs. We can spot these sufferers because the chest will appear abnormally deep. In fact, the term "barrel chest" is descriptive.

The purpose of this discussion is to suggest a remedy—namely, a corset, despite the fact that men are affected more frequently than women. Since our lady friends have donned trousers, mere males will be wise to step into their domain and wear abdominal garments.

The object, of course, is to raise the diaphragm—the huge muscle which crosses the body and which separates the chest from the abdomen—to the position it would normally assume at the end of expiration. If the structure can be held at this level during active outbreathing the upper portion of the lungs will be squeezed with far less effort. Numerous cases have been reported in which conspicuous success with this device has been demonstrated.

We have all seen patients with emphysema who are unable to supply sufficient oxygen to the blood. Sometimes the face will become deeply congested and the lips or even the cheeks may assume a slightly bluish tinge. In an acute attack, relief will follow the inhalation of oxygen mixed with air. A few will carry on satisfactorily during the daytime, but will be bothered at night. Providing a tank of this vital gas, which can be turned on as needed, will be helpful.

How can this disorder be prevented? We can avoid placing pressure upon the delicate sacs thru excessive coughing or loud or prolonged shouting. Then, too, posture must be considered. A lax abdomen may be in the process of developing for months or years. In consequence, the diaphragm will drop and distention of the cells follows. Rubberlike strands are replaced by stringy, fibrous material, which is worthless when it comes to the exchange of air.

But we can compensate for this condition by supporting the abdominal wall, thus checking the downward sag of the diaphragm. The ailment is often associated with chronic bronchitis or asthmatic seizures. It is not at all uncommon among musicians who play wind instruments, or those who place great pressure upon the thorax.

Test Your Horse Sense

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 31.

1. If you sat down to a meal termed "brunch," the time would probably be 7 a. m. 11 a. m. 4 p. m. 9 p. m.
2. According to popular usage you should seize a dilemma by its Horns Forelock Ears Tail.
3. A bee keeper usually refers to his bees as a Litter Covey Bevy Stand.
4. A knuckle ball should remind you of Billiards Croquet Baseball Tennis.
5. Pork steak is usually cut from which part of the animal? Shoulder Side Ham Loin.
6. Americans should always remember that we voters are the employers while our elected representatives are simply our paid hired hands or employés. Today I'll allot one point for each correct matching of the following officials with the salaries which we taxpayers give them per year.

[a] United States senators	[a] $75,000 per year
[b] Ambassadors	[b] $20,000 per year
[c] Supreme court justices	[c] $17,500 per year
[d] Cabinet members	[d] $15,000 per year
[e] President of the U. S. A.	[e] $10,000 per year

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6 average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

THE "G" MEN AFTER HIM.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—While attending the summer session of the University of Missouri school of journalism I felt that a fine opportunity had arisen to make use of some verses from the Line o' Type column—ironical verses touching on the four freedoms, "Beautiful Slogans"—patriotic verses aimed to clear the air of war propaganda.

I learned that the local chapter of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies was having a "patriotic rally" on June 20. So I attended the rally, taking with me a small pile of reprinted copies of these verses, which I deposited on the pamphlet table upon entering.

The next day I was amused and surprised to find in the local Columbia Tribune the following: "One sidelight which went unnoticed by the bulk of those present in the auditorium was the flurry caused among rally officials when a stack of small sheets containing isolationist propaganda was found among the literature being distributed from a pamphlet table near the entrance. Entitled "Beautiful Slogans," they were quickly disposed of by W. H. Becker, chairman of our local committee. Efforts were being made by the committee today to trace down the person who placed the material on the table."

After my professors and friends in the journalism school had laughed over the account I quite forgot it until about a month later, when I learned that a government agent had been down inquiring about me. It seems that a patriotic citizen had written the government informing them that I was distributing Nazi literature or something of the sort and therefore should be investigated. Makes me wonder whether the G in G-Men stands for government or gestapo.

A NOT POMPOUS EXECUTIVE.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 28.—THE TRIBUNE's editorial entitled "Mr. Roosevelt and Royalty" seems to be only a sarcastic attempt to accentuate something unimportant. Mr. Roosevelt's attitude toward White House guests indicates that he is a democratic gentleman and not a pompous executive. J. O. B.

TO AVERT AN EXPLOSION.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—I'll explode if THE TRIBUNE does not let me get the following off my chest:

We "traded" those 50 destroyers for Atlantic bases.

We gave $7,000,000,000 principally to Britain to prevent a Nazi conquest of the British Isles, a conquest which no right thinking American wanted to happen.

We have discovered by subsequent events:

[1] That we have to pay exorbitant prices for the sites for those Atlantic bases which we were led to believe had been secured by those 50 good destroyers;

[2] That our $7,000,000,000 gift to Britain was more than sufficient to insure the safety of the British Isles from Nazi conquest as proven by the fact that the British have diverted large streams of American made tanks and other weapons intended by Americans for the defense of the British Isles—diverted to Egypt and the Levant and used in the conquest of Syria and now on their way to the rich oil fields of Iran—all in the name of democracy and the four freedoms;

[3] That not Japanese bombs but British imperial tax collectors on the Burma road are delaying needed war supplies which we have given to China under lend-lease bill.

Therefore, I move that the American people in righteous wrath demand that congress shall not appropriate another cent to Britain under lend-lease but only funds for China. And I further move that we let Singapore and the Dutch East Indies and all British imperialists and all pro-British fifth columnists in authority in Washington go plumb to hell.

WHAT! AN AMERICAN PLAY?

South Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 28.—Propaganda for the English is crowding everything else off the air, the stage, and the screen. As members of the America First committee, and in accord with you, we think it time the American stage, screen, and radio devote some time to American traditions and history.

We have just completed a three act American historical play. It is founded on authentic historical incidents, and there is much in those incidents that will give hope and courage to our bewildered people.

But we are faced with the problem of finding a real American producer whose purse strings are not controled by the heralds of the Help Britain First movement. Can you give us the name of any one who might be interested in producing AMERICAN plays? GRACE MILLER.

CONSCRIPT'S SISTER'S PLEA.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—Orchids to THE TRIBUNE for its stand in our international situation; for its fighting spirit in connection with our own boys, and for its real Americanism.

Because of this, I am writing to apprise you of a condition that exists at Camp Polk, La., where my brother is located.

Why do our own boys have to sleep on the ground or buy their own bed rolls when we dish our money out so freely to others, and why do our own boys have to pay more for their ice cream, etc., than they do if they purchase it in town? Did some congressman want to get in good with his people by dumping this swampland on the government—land that is alive with insects, ants, and snakes so that the boys are afraid to sleep?

I think a condition like this should be investigated and our boys given first preference on the American taxpayers' money. ETHEL A. A.

A REGION NEGLECTED.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—Recently I noted a list of recreational facilities for children in the city. There were none listed for the 34th ward, where they are badly needed. In the vicinity of Armitage and California avenues there isn't a playground within a mile and there are many children who have no place but the streets and alleys to play in.

We have tried for at least 10 years thru various sources to obtain some sort of a playground, but to date have had no results. Other parts of the city have schoolyards fitted up with playground apparatus. Why hasn't this ward?

EASEMENT.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I own about 10 acres of property located on one of the major United States highways in California. I have about 800 feet frontage on this major highway.

1. To the rear of my property is a 70 acre plot which is owned by another man. This man has no outlet from his property and is making entry to his property from the highway by driving across my property.

While I have no objection to this as an act of courtesy, [2] I have been told that according to California law this man can claim a strip of my property for his roadway after a certain period of time.

3. I shall appreciate your judgment on the situation. W. L.

1. If your predecessor in title originally owned both parcels then there may be an easement by implication, and you would not be entitled to cut it off.

2. Correct.

3. We cannot advise to advantage without having a diagram and a previous history of the title more clearly before us. How did the neighbor come to acquire a piece of property that has no means of access?

BRITISH AID CUTS PLANES; U.S. WAR GAMES CRIPPLED

Outmoded Machines Used for Maneuvers.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Camden, Ark., Aug. 31.—No bombardment or attack aviation will be available for use by the 2d army in the new and vital phase of its maneuvers, which is just beginning.

The air force assigned with the 140,000 men consists of 52 observation planes, most of which were outmoded months ago by rapid advances in European fighting aircraft since the war began.

This was revealed today by a high officer of the army's field headquarters in Prescott. He said there are two reasons why bombardment and attack planes will not be available. First, the air corps is so busy trying to train men under its own expansion program that it has no time to participate. Second, so many planes are going to Great Britain that American forces are handicapped in their activities.

Modern Training Affected.

The 140,000 men of Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear's 2d army were to receive intensive training in the technique of modern warfare in this army phase of the maneuvers, which began Friday and will continue to Sept. 12. Seventy-five thousand men have been designated as the Blue army opposed by a Red force of 65,000.

Just how the troops are to be trained in modern warfare when the bombardment and attack aviation so vital to it is missing is a matter for conjecture. Even the lone squadron of 13 dive bombing planes, which took part in the preceding phase of the maneuvers, was ordered back to its base at Savannah, Ga., last Thursday.

"The air corps simply doesn't have time to take part," the officer said. "Trained squadrons are being split up almost daily to furnish men for new units, and training of new personnel is a tremendous job. Because of this splitting up of squadrons few can be said to have reached a stage where they are ready for maneuvers. Then too, the British are getting so many of our planes that our own activities are hampered."

Minimum Put at 361 Planes.

This expert outlined what he believed to be the minimum air force needed by the 2d army in its new maneuver phase. He said this minimum force would consist of 361 planes. It would include 10 observation squadrons of 13 planes each, a reconnaissance squadron of 13 planes for long range observation, a dive bomber group of 44 planes, a light bombardment group of 44 planes, a medium bombardment group of 44 planes, and a pursuit group of 86 planes.

"I believe this is the minimum required by the 2d army for light operations in the army phase of the maneuvers," the officer said.

Far from approaching near this mark, however, the 2d army will have only four observation squadrons of 13 planes at its disposal. These are the regular army's 1st observation squadron, the federalized 102d National Guard squadron from New York, the 108th from Chicago, and the 110th from St. Louis.

Planes Fail to Measure Up.

"The plane with which these squadrons are mainly equipped is the O-47 observation ship," the officer said. "This three-place ship has a top speed of about 180 miles an hour. We know it couldn't compete against the type of observation plane used in Europe.

"The British use 350 mile an hour pursuit planes, lightened up and sent over at 20,000 feet, for observation. We are fully aware that the O-47 doesn't measure up."

The 2d army will meet the 3d army in Louisiana in the final phase of the maneuvers from Sept. 15 to 20. More than 400,000 soldiers will take part.

ARMY'S RESERVE OFFICERS TO GET EARLY RELEASES

Term Ends After 1 Year Wherever Practical.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31 (AP).—The war department announced a policy today of releasing reserve officers at the end of one year of active duty "so far as is practicable," if the officers wish to discontinue active service.

The policy means that many of the 67,100 reserve officers on active duty will return to private life along with 200,000 draftees and regular soldiers who are to be released in the next four months.

Because of rapid expansion of the army air forces, reserve officers in that arm of the service will be retained for "at least an additional 12 months without their consent," it was stated, but others "should be released as rapidly as their services can be spared or suitable replacements can be trained."

Percentages Set Forth.

The policy prescribes that not more than 50 per cent of the reserve officers on duty in each regiment, battalion, or company may be required to serve longer than 12 months, and not more than 75 per cent of those on duty in corps area service commands and war department administrative units.

However, the percentages may be exceeded in the case of officers serving outside continental United States, those on the staff and faculty of army schools, certain officers from other branches who are serving with the air corps, and in the case of regular army warrant officers and enlisted men who hold reserve commissions.

Age Limits Prescribed.

Officers also may be required to stay on for extended duty if connected with the signal corps, with the reserve officers training corps, or if filling some specialized position for which there is "no other readily available reserve officer."

Extended active duty will not be required of officers in service with troop units if they have reached these ages: Colonels, 55; lieutenant colonels, 52; majors, 47; captains, 42; first lieutenants, 35, and second lieutenants, 30.

If serving with other than troop units, officers will be released if they have reached these ages: Colonels, 60; lieutenant colonels, 58; majors, 54; captains, 50; first lieutenants, 47, and second lieutenants, 45.

Girl Critically Shot; Hold Ex-Convict Found with Her

Ruth Virginia Duncan, 21 years old, was found shot and critically wounded yesterday in her room at the Surf Shore apartments, 426 Surf street. Police took into custody Joseph Hale, 31 years old, an ex-convict whom they found in the room. Hale told police she shot herself in the head during a struggle in which he attempted to wrest a revolver from her after she had threatened to kill herself.

HUNDREDS FLEE RIVER FLOODS IN WISCONSIN

Hayward, Wis., Aug. 31 (AP).—Hundreds of families in widely separated cities in northern Wisconsin were forced to abandon their homes today because of a flood which followed drenching week-end rains.

According to reports of highway, utility, and railroad officials, storm and flood damage has exceeded $1,000,000.

More than 30 bridges were washed out or damaged, several dams undermined, and hundreds of holiday vacationists isolated in dozens of northern resorts.

Flee Homes in Boats.

Rising waters caused families to leave their homes at Odanah, Wausau, Chippewa Falls, Hayward, and other points.

Sixty Indian families fled in boats as the waters of the White and Bad rivers rose six feet in some sections.

Fifteen inches of rain fell in the last 36 hours in Hayward, in the heart of the resort area. The surging waters of Swamp creek cut a channel 15 feet deep thru the downtown district, endangering several buildings.

Sawyer, Ashland, Price, and Bayfield counties were the hardest hit by the week-end rains. Points on the Flambeau and Chippewa rivers were warned of impending floods.

Dam Levels Lowered.

Officials of the Northern States Power company ordered the water level lowered at all power dams north of Eau Claire, predicting the crest of the flood waters would reach Eau Claire tomorrow. A sharp rise also was expected on the upper Mississippi.

The Omaha railroad embankment in Hayward was dynamited yesterday to divert rising streams that threatened to flood the city.

The Lake Superior District Power company had 100 men sandbagging the White river dam, south of Ashland, when a log jam developed.

The Wisconsin state employment agency broadcast an appeal by radio today for men to combat the anticipated flood stage on the Chippewa.

Train service at Ashland was suspended temporarily on four railroads because of washouts. Traffic was tied up in the city when the Bay City creek went on a rampage. Tracks leading to the du Pont Nemours dynamite manufacturing plant at Barkdale were inundated.

LABOR SHORTAGE IN OREGON PERILS $10,000,000 CROP

Salem, Ore., Aug. 31 (AP).—Gov. Charles A. Sprague of Oregon pleaded today for harvest help to save 10 million dollars' worth of fast ripening crops.

Labor is so scarce, the governor was informed, that farmers have but 10,000 of the 40,000 workers needed to pick string beans, hops, and prunes.

The governor asked schools to delay resumption of classes or to excuse students who would help with the harvest, and requested men on a five day week to put in their days off by working in the fields.

Betty Butler to Be Bride of Motley Sawyer

BY JUDITH CASS.

At a party on Saturday night at their summer home in Marion, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. John Meigs Butler of Winnetka announced the engagement of their daughter, Betty, to Motley Sawyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Eugene Sawyer Jr. of Dedham, Mass.

Mr. Sawyer, who will return to Yale university for his senior year this month, met many of his fiancée's Chicago friends when he came west for her debut tea-dance last September at the Indian Hill club. Miss Butler was a sophomore at Smith college last winter, but she will not return to school this year, preferring to remain at home. The Butler family will arrive from Marion the middle of the month.

Before entering Smith, Miss Butler attended the Roycemoor school and Dobbs Ferry. She has three brothers: Jack, who was graduated from Yale in June and who went to South America on tour with the glee club; Morton, who attended business school in Chicago, and Bill, a Hotchkiss student. No plans have been made for the wedding.

Caroline Faust's Engagement Told.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Elbert Faust of Evanston have announced the engagement of their daughter, Caroline, to Clarence Ely Gustafson of Ladysmith, Wis. The news was told at a tea on Aug. 10 in the Faust's summer home at Red Cedar Lake, Wis. The family just has returned from Wisconsin.

Miss Faust attended Mundelein college and Northwestern university. She is a member of the junior board of the Northwestern University settlement. Mr. Gustafson, son of Gustave Gustafson, was graduated from Iowa State college at Ames, Ia. After their marriage in October they will live in Ladysmith.

Mr. and Mrs. William Badger of Geneva announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret, to Allen C. Mead of Geneva. Miss Badger was graduated from Lawrence college and Mr. Mead from the University of Wisconsin, at which he also received his master's degree.

Further news of romantic interest is that Mrs. Joseph Powell Carr, the former Florence Bushnell, and Prince Michael Cantacuzene, great-grandson of President Ulysses S. Grant, are to be married this fall. Mrs. Carr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. V. Bushnell, and Prince Cantacuzene will reside in his home near Milburn. Mrs. Carr has two children, Janet and William, 16 and 13 respectively, who are about the same ages as Prince Cantacuzene's children, Irina and Rodion. Prince Cantacuzene, who fled Russia with his mother, the former Julia Dent Grant, and family at the time of the Russian revolution, was one of the first members of the Mill Creek Hunt, which meets not far from his country home.

Jane Harper Will Wed at Libertyville Today.

The marriage of Miss Jane Harper, daughter of the Paul V. Harpers of Libertyville, and George W. Overton Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Overton of Geneva, will bring friends of the two families to the Harper home at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. A garden reception will follow the ceremony, which will be read by the Rev. James Coletti of Oak Park.

The bride will wear the handsome bengaline and lace wedding dress that was worn by her grandmother, Mrs. George Vincent, and her mother and her aunt, Mrs. Maxwell E. Foster of Boston. Mrs. Foster has not come for the wedding, but Mrs. Vincent is here from Greenwich, Conn. The bride's only attendant will be Ann Sheldon West, Mrs. Edwin W. Winter II.'s little daughter.

Richard Babcock of Woodstock will be best man. Ushers will be Lawrence A. Carton, Sherman Gifford of New York, Dudley Zinke, Henry Zeiss, and Joseph Harrison. Mr. Overton and his bride will be at home near the University of Chicago while he completes his law studies.

Some brides-to-be are being fêted at parties today. Mr. and Mrs. Robert

Stritch Pleads for Religion in Education

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch, inaugurated the New World broadcast of the Chicagoland Church hour over W-G-N yesterday with a plea for greater attention to the religious education of youth. The New World feature will be heard every six weeks on the Chicagoland Church hour from 9 to 10 Sunday morning. It is conducted by the New World, official publication of the Catholic archdiocese. The Rev. Edward V. Dailey is the guest commentator and director.

"I can think of no greater enemies which threaten seriously our freedoms than the shallow fellows who disregard religion in human life and society," Archbishop Stritch asserted. "I know of no more urgent undertaking for our citizens today than the study of the place of religion in the life of a free people."

The prelate then cited the vastness of the American educational enterprise.

"Yet we are nervous about our schools and we feel that, despite our efforts, we have not made them correspond to life and needs of our times," the archbishop said. "Something is the matter and it is significant that more and more educators are talking about the need of more religion or as some would have it, moral training in our schools. Plans have been drawn for released time for the religious education of our children."

The archbishop gave qualified approval to "released time religious education," by use of the word "palliative." He also outlined the Catholic view of the primacy of religion in the educational process as illustrated by the parochial school, the Catholic high school, and the church's higher educational program.

Father Dailey's commentary during the broadcast, which originated in the sanctuary of Holy Name cathedral, surveyed Catholic movements thruout the world.

Musical interludes for the broadcast were sung by the Holy Name Cathedral choristers under the direction of the Rev. Emmett Regan, with Albert Wideman at the organ.

Laughing Little Man Conducts in Grant Park

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Caesar Petrillo, brother of President James C. Petrillo of the American Federation of Musicians, made his first Grant park appearance last night at the head of the CBS orchestra. He turned out to be a laughing little man who chuckled merrily to himself at the end of each number.

He conducted with a violence of gesture that often endangered those near him, but he got the orchestra to play in a live and often brilliant manner. The program consisted of a miscellany of light classical and popular music, but easily its most startling feature was a medley of Scotch tunes. The arrangement became very jazzy as it went along, and "Loch Lomond" took on a low down, back room character seldom or never associated with it.

John Neher, baritone soloist, gave a somewhat slow and tentative performance of the Song to the Evening Star from Wagner's "Tannhäuser," but displayed his familiar fluency and good musical sense in the Negro spiritual, "Trampin'." As for "The Song of the Flea," which stood between these numbers, two of the greatest mysteries of music are why singers sing it and why audiences so delight in it.

The Grant park week-end also featured a good concert Saturday night under the direction of Jerzy Bojanowski, one of the most skilled, most sensitive, and most knowing of all the lake front conductors. A feature of this program was a group of songs by the sonorous, wonderfully alive Sarmatia Male chorus under Z. Skubikowski's direction.

Saturday's soloist was the cellist, Harriet Curtis Flower.

Best to Marry for Love, Not to Trick Fate

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.

Dear Miss Blake: "I am 22 and have had few advantages in my life. I never have known what it means to have beaux and dates as most other girls have. In other words, I am not a popular person. I am not what you would call especially good looking. On the other hand, I am not bad looking, either. I am the home type of girl. I can do everything that is meant by the home type. I can cook and sew and wash and iron and so on. Now, strangely enough, a man four years older than I, who works where my dad does, has asked me to marry him. He is all right, but he is not the type I would ever have dreamed about as a husband for me. Yet I am afraid, not being popular, that I will never get another chance and I don't want to die an old maid."

"Wondering."

The foregoing paragraph in "Wondering's" letter gives rise to the question of how many marriages actually occur because the girl is afraid it is her one and only chance.

The "old maid" expression seems fairly grotesque in this day of single women filling the most useful of places in life's scheme, economic and social. The term should have been buried eons ago. However, to answer Wondering:

Does it not occur to you that if you have the power to attract a man four years your senior, with obviously no effort on your part, that if you were to develop a bit more confidence in yourself you could achieve the popularity you'd like to have?

We certainly would urge you not to marry on the premise that you may not have another chance. You may have many chances if you only learn to put a higher estimate on yourself.

First Regular Hunt Meetings Set for Today

The arrival of Labor day is a good sign to members of local hunts which will, for the most part, hold their first regular meetings of the season on the holiday. Weather permitting, members of the Mill Creek will be up bright and early this morning while heavy dew still covers the ground. Seven o'clock is set for the meeting time, and the popular M. F. H., Hugh M. Johnston, who has been recovering from back injuries, is going to try to go out.

Mrs. James Simpson Jr. is deputy master of the Mill Creek, of which C. Daggett Harvey is secretary, and Miss Betty Meade and John F. Jelke honorary whippers-in. The first Sunday morning meeting and luncheon will be held on Sept. 14, and from then on the club will meet early Tuesdays and Thursdays and on Sunday mornings. Mrs. William B. Cudahy heads the club's house committee, an important job, for there is lots of entertaining there during the season. The annual hunter trials are being planned for Oct. 17 or 18.

Members of the Fox River Valley Hunt will start cubbing at 8 o'clock this morning, meeting at the Dundee farm of Mr. and Mrs. Edgerton A. Throckmorton. Beginning next week, the hunt will meet regularly early Thursday and Sunday mornings until the weather is cool enough to have a fast, hard hunt later in the day. Denison B. Hull is M.F.H. of the Fox River Valley, with Miss Virginia Cardwell as secretary. Maj. Henry Bate is the whip, and Mr. Throckmorton the honorary whipper-in.

Mr. Hull is joint master with Ross J. Beatty Jr. of the Longmeadow Hounds, which will not start meeting until next Saturday.

The Wayne-Du Page Hunt will not meet until later either. Its members will gather for their first run on Sunday morning, Sept. 14, at the kennels near the Dunham Woods Riding club in Wayne.

Numerology By Evelyn Holmes

Sept. 1, 1941.

Universal day—Altho a holiday, this is a 7-day so don't expect too much of it in the way of gayety.

Name and numbers—It is interesting to see how the names of the world leaders, together with their personal year numbers shed considerable light on their actions. For instance, we have just seen our own President take a leading part in a dramatic meeting with Winston Churchill.

Let us look at the President's personal year. His birthday is Jan. 30, so we add 1 for January, 3 for 30, and 6 for 1941, which gives Mr. Roosevelt a 1-year this year. If you remember what I have said about the 1-year, you know that it is the beginning of a new cycle, and I suggested that those having a 1-year should be all ready to go full steam ahead in the month of September. Plans, new starts, breaking into new ground, new and original ideas, pioneering and aggressive action are all part of the prospects for those in a 1-year this year.

SYNOPSIS.

Kathleen Murray inherits an income and a home in an actors' colony in California and goes there to live. She and Hugo Lang, whose play is being produced in the local summer theater, fall in love. But Hugo wants to wait to marry until his play makes him enough money for them to live on without using Kathleen's. Carol Keyes is backing his production and insists on playing the lead rôle the young Jeanie Payson is a much better actress. Maurice Reed has the leading male rôle, Ellen Mount, Hugo's foster mother. Toby Allerton, Kathleen's protégé and Jeanie have minor rôles. It is a murder play and Kathleen has an uncomfortable presentiment when Wilkie Stokes, another member of the colony, discusses the fascination of killing. Jeanie is found murdered one morning after having gone for a ride the evening before with Hugo. Hugo, who is hiding out in a mountain cabin when the police find him, refuses to talk and so he is tried and sentenced to life imprisonment for Jeanie's murder. Kathleen still believing him innocent, hires Detective Bill Greer, hoping to uncover evidence to free Hugo. Bill finds a money box hidden under the floor of the mountain cabin, with only Jeanie's finger prints on it. Kathleen thinks Stokes is guilty and in trying to trap him, he puts on an act to frighten her and she at last realizes he couldn't have committed the murder. Susan, Kathleen's housekeeper, finds a memorandum in Jeanie's handwriting, showing Jeanie and some man had a joint account, and Toby discovers that Jeanie and a male companion went on a day's trip together which strongly suggests there was a romance between them. Mrs. Payson tries to blackmail Kathleen with one of Jeanie's letters to Hugo.

INSTALMENT XLIII.

INTERESTED PRODUCER.

Mrs. Payson was silent for quite a long time. She hadn't opened the letter. She craved to open it to satisfy her blazing curiosity. But she was afraid to for two reasons. First, in case there was nothing incriminating in it, in which case getting money out of the rich Murray girl would depend on her ability to bluff. Second, if it were incriminating and Miss Murray didn't buy it, it might spoil her rich revenge with newspaper or police.

She didn't quite see how, but then she didn't see the how or wherefore of a lot of the things they discussed at the trial. Certainly if she opened it and found it a mare's nest it would knock all the fighting heart out of her.

"Hello—hello," called Kathleen, "have you gone away or something?"

"Maybe she didn't send it because she didn't live long enough."

Mrs. Payson's voice broke because she was feeling so desperately sorry for herself.

Can it be that she really does suffer over her daughter's death? wondered Kathleen, prompted by her ready generosity.

"Tell me more about the letter."

Mrs. Payson described it, exaggerating its weight and thickness, and lying about how she had found it among Jeanie's things. She was sorting out the girl's clothes in order to make a parcel for the Little Sisters of the Poor and there was the letter in the pocket of a pair of slacks.

Kathleen said bluntly—"how much do you want for it?"

"Five thousand dollars! No checks. This time I want cash."

Kathleen jumped. But it would serve her well in gaining time till Bill came back. He would find a way to get the letter.

"Very well, if it looks as if it's worth it when I see it. But that means a few days' delay. I'll have to sell some stocks. I'll call you back when I have the cash ready in the house."

Mrs. Payson was startled by her own success—also incredulous.

"You mean that?"

Kathleen's answer was ambiguous, but she had to be satisfied.

"I mean I'll buy the letter if it proves to be necessary—and at your own price."

She hung up before Mrs. Payson had time to take in and raise an argument about the qualification "if it proves to be necessary." That would surely hold Mrs. Payson's hand for a few days—if it were true that an unmailed letter from Jeanie to Hugo really existed.

Kathleen suspected a trick, but she was teased out of her hard-won calm by Mrs. Payson's story. All next day it tormented her. Was there or was there not one? And if there were, what on earth could be in it? Could it be one of those ambiguous things which would harm Hugo, altho actually it was completely innocent?

She was in the living room playing with the audacious and companionable puppy when Toby returned from the theater. He came in with a bright jubilant air.

"O, Kathleen, I'm glad you're still up. What do you think happened?"

Nervous tension made her irritable. "How can I know? Am I supposed to have second sight or read your mind with telepathy?"

She was instantly sorry when she saw the disappointment in his crestfallen face. "Forgive me, Toby—it's Mrs. Payson on my mind. Tell me the news. 'Looks like it's something pleasant."

"Yes, it is. A man called Chester Moffat who's visiting Hollywood came in tonight. He's some big noise on Broadway. He came backstage and asked if any of us were in touch with the author. Mrs. Mount had gone right off to bed after her last exit, so Carol sent him to me because I was living with you. He says the play would be wonderful with a little reshaping. He's coming to see you, and I think he wants to produce it."

Life going on—and going upward!

"O, Toby—how that will please Hugo."

"I hope it will. I mean I hope he still cares. And Mr. Moffat sort of wants me, too. He says he has some one to play the part, but I'd be swell for his understudy. He says he doesn't want any one else. He told me right out they were all mediocre, except Maurice, who was only laughable. I didn't tell Carol what he said, of course, but she's awfully mad he wants the play and not the company. That's why she was going on running—to use the publicity to get some attention for Maurice and herself. Mr. Moffat said Mrs. Mount was the best of the lot for acting, but her day is over."

"How hollow that sounds! O, well, it's nice that good things can go on happening. I hope he didn't want the play because of Hugo's unhappy notoriety."

"I'm sure not. He said minds were mysterious and inexplicable, but he couldn't imagine the mind that conceived such a healthy play prompting a shoddy murder. He said it looked like Hugo would be too forthright to get himself into a mess of that sort."

"I'm glad somebody can see straight, Listen, Toby, I'm still thinking about yesterday. Is there any possible crazy chance it could have been Maurice?"

"I don't think so, Kathleen. Hugo wouldn't shield Maurice. Why ever should he?"

"Suppose he didn't know it was Maurice?"

"Then why shield a stranger?"

"There's that queer wound. The threat of torture."

"If that were Maurice, Hugo wouldn't be afraid of him. The thing that looks queerest is marriage on a Monday. On the Monday."

"I can't share your simple faith in that obvious coincidence. What would happen to your chance with Bill if you took this offer to be an understudy?"

"I don't think I'd want to. Bill was right. Twelve weeks' work and 40 weeks' rest wont help mother like a regular job in the Barrow office. She'd never have to work or worry again if I got started on a reliable substantial career. But if I consulted her, she'd be sure to tell me to go where my own desires were strongest. Guess I'm all set to become one of Barrow's ace detectives."

"It's hard to decide, Toby. But I think you're right. You'd have an interesting life with plenty of scope for your talents. And you could always go back to acting if you had some money saved and the right opportunity. Look at the astounding careers of some of the film stars—"

He picked up the puppy, which was chewing his shoelaces.

"That's enough about me. What has that woman been doing to worry you again?"

Kathleen went to her desk and produced Mrs. Payson's truculent letter. "I've stalled her till Bill gets back," she said, handing it to him.

Toby read it, and, to her surprise, he was smiling.

"What's funny about such beastliness? Don't you realize I've spent a night and a day worrying?"

"It reminded me of something that happened when I was getting ready to go out, and I didn't have time to call you upstairs to look at it. Come up now."

Kathleen went with Toby to his high bedroom under the eaves. He lifted a framed sampler from the wall above his dresser. "When the wind came up from the sea, this fell down. And, look, there's writing under it."

Kathleen looked at her grandmother's writing on the wallpaper.

"Some people carry a bigger load than a donkey. All the troubles they've got, they ever had and they're ever going to have. A mule has more sense. It won't be intimidated and it won't be driven. Go to the mule, says I, wiser than Solomon."

Susan arrived shortly in her diadem of tin curlers and her regal grey dressing gown.

"Land sakes," she said, cross as a baby roused from sleep. "What are you two laughing at?"

Over 10,000 Attend Palestine Histadruth Day at Riverview

More than 10,000 persons attended the fourth annual Palestine Histadruth day sponsored by the Palestine Labor campaign in Riverview park yesterday.

Speakers of the day were Isaac Hamlin, national secretary of the Palestine Labor campaign, and Dr. David Rebelsky, director of mid-western states for the campaign. David Glinkowsky, opera singer from Palestine, and Philip Pinchick, noted cantor, were also on the program.

The outing was part of the annual drive conducted in Chicago by the campaign to raise funds for the organized Jewish workers and pioneers in Palestine. Charles Pozin was chairman.

Even when the price of cabbage is high for cabbage, it's low for a salad vegetable. Crisp, crunchy cabbage, besides being healthful for all but the very young, and some adults who are following special diets, adds a pleasant contrast of texture to a meal which is composed mostly of soft foods.

FAVORITE CABBAGE SALAD COMBINATIONS.

1. Shredded cabbage, shredded pineapple, cream dressing.

2. Shredded cabbage, chopped green pepper, grated onion, diluted boiled dressing.

3. Shredded cabbage, grated carrot, chopped pickle, cole slaw dressing, or boiled dressing.

4. Shredded cabbage, diced raw apple, chopped green pepper, creamy dressing.

5. Shredded red and white cabbage, chopped stuffed olives, cole slaw dressing.

6. Shredded cabbage, diced beet pickle, chopped celery, thin boiled dressing.

7. Shredded cabbage, chopped spinach, grated onion, sliced radishes, any dressing you like, even French.

8. Shredded cabbage, diced cucumber, diced pineapple, a rather sweet dressing.

9. This is one I like: Shredded cabbage jellied with chopped green pepper and celery in equal parts of tomato juice and sauerkraut juice. Use plain gelatin. A little onion juice is not amiss, and mayonnaise is good dressing.

10. Jellied cabbage, shredded carrot, green onion and green pepper. Use lemon gelatin made sharp with vinegar and several tablespoons of catsup.

Complexion Salad.

[Serves Six.]

1 tablespoon plain gelatin
½ cup cold water
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup hot water
3 tablespoons mild vinegar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 teaspoons grated onion
¾ cup grated raw carrot
2 tablespoons chopped spinach or parsley
¾ cup shredded cabbage

Soften gelatin in cold water and add salt and hot water. Stir until thoroly dissolved. Add vinegar, lemon juice, and onion. Cool until mixture begins to thicken. Fold in remaining ingredients. Turn into a mold and chill. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise.

CREAM DRESSING FOR CABBAGE COMBINATIONS.

Combine 1½ tablespoons vinegar or lemon juice, ¾ cup cream or evaporated milk, 1½ teaspoons sugar and ½ teaspoon salt. Good with shredded cabbage alone or with cabbage in combination with other salad ingredients.

SOUR CREAM DRESSING FOR CABBAGE SALADS.

Combine ¼ cup mild vinegar, 1 cup thick sour cream, 2 tablespoons sugar, and ½ teaspoon salt. Beat together well. A little onion juice and paprika may be added, if desired.

Chili sauce may be added to either of the foregoing recipes, or to any other dressing to be used with cabbage salad.

See our booklet, "Everyday Adventures in Salads" [5 cents, by mail], for many other cabbage salads and recipes for salad dressings.

Taffeta in Green, Red, Gold

Vividly checked taffeta in green, red, and gold makes this ideal dance dress for the first fall parties. Wide around the waistline is a green velvet cummerbund sash in the same dark green color as the green of the dress. The only accent on the left shoulder strap of the bodice is a deftly tied bow of the taffeta.

Autumn Styles Lure Shopper Bored with Summer Needs

BY REA SEEGER.

Summer fashions are rounding the last lap. Bored with the daily routine of keeping white accessories spotless, shoppers have hustled into the smart new colored gloves. Completely fed up with the ubiquitous coconut straw hats, the same women rush to slide under the smart all black hats that hint of fall and winter. Sick to the soul with faded cotton prints, dejected and sagging sheers, pastel tints, frills, and frou-frou of hot weather clothes, they are cheering for the sleek distinctive town clothes in black and new husky colored fall woolens. A new season is about to be launched!

Never have Chicago shops and stores been so filled with new fashions. Brilliant new colors, new silhouettes, new sleeves, dashing new peplums make the first collections irresistible lures for any summer weary shopper. Crisp daytime dresses of thin wool accented with taffeta or soft velvet are outstanding finds of the hour. These supersmart creations provide the dress for immediate wear. Usually the sleeves are long and fitted, necklines flattering, and all the new details such as trim, soft folds, peplums, and artistically managed fullness make them important new ideas.

Significant new colors are presented, bolts of fascinating new fabrics are displayed in the yardage departments. High colored costume accessories tempt the appraising sleuth with what is to come, and the first showing of footgear expertly matched to gloves and handbags this year have eclipsed all former showings.

Stevens Hammond and their daughter, Miss Mary Stevens Hammond, are giving a breakfast at their Winnetka home for Miss Anita Straub and William W. Darrow, who are being married on Wednesday. Miss Hammond, who came out informally with Miss Straub two years ago, is to be a bridesmaid. She will return to Bennington college for her senior year this fall.

Miss Hammond's younger sister, Miss Jean Sterling Hammond, is not to have a formal debut either, but her parents probably will entertain informally for her at Christmas time. She will be a sophomore at Sarah Lawrence this year.

Mrs. Robert Butz and Mrs. Ernst von Ammon are entertaining at supper tonight for Miss Straub and Mr. Darrow, and tomorrow night the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Straub, will give the bridal dinner.

The Charles Buells are entertaining at cocktails this afternoon for his niece, Miss Modrea Mullen, who will become Mrs. William H. Mitchell Jr. on Friday. Miss Evelyn Lawrence is giving a luncheon at the Dunham Woods Riding club in Wayne for Miss Patricia Floto and Reges M. Lynch, who will be married on Saturday.

6th Annual Lake Forest Dahlia Show This Week-end.

The gymnasium of the Lake Forest Day school will be ablaze with color next Saturday and Sunday when the Lake Forest Garden club and the North Shore Dahlia society hold their sixth annual dahlia show there. The show will be open from 2 to 10 o'clock on Saturday and from 10 to 10 on Sunday. There'll be 26 classes in all, including specimen entries from amateurs and from private estates, and table settings and arrangements.

Among the rare blossoms will be entries from the A. Watson Armour, Thomas E. Donnelley, Donald B. Douglas, Marvin B. Pool, John G. Sample, and Edward A. Cudahy Jr. estates. Mrs. Howard Phillips, Mrs. James H. Douglas, and Mrs. Charles S. De Long will judge the arrangements. Judges for the specimen classes will be provided by the Central State Dahlia society of Chicago.

When Henry and Rew Price return next Saturday from the Michigan farm of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Rew of Evanston, they will find a new brother waiting for them. The third child of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morgan Price [Elinor Rew] was born on Wednesday in the Evanston hospital. He has been named for his father. Mrs. L. Morgan Price of Evanston is the children's paternal grandmother.

Lunching at Ozark Commercial House
PART I.

In quick succession I help myself from the big platters and bowls passed to me at the long table in the dining room of the Commercial House. I hand them along to the rest of our Saturday shopping-in-town party, the Jedge, my mother, Eleanor Parks, and our Chicago guest, Alice Carr.

"Just a dream," murmurs Alice. "I can't really be seeing coleslaw, mashed potatoes, turnips, cottage cheese, chicken gravy, pickled beets, fried chicken, boiled beef, fried sweet corn, succotash, and wilted lettuce all at once." From the other side of the table come plates of corn bread, hot soda biscuits, and cloverleaf rolls.

I help myself to honey, and remark conversationally, "My grandfather was one of those persons whom bees never stung!"

"Shore could use him down here, a-huntin' bee trees!" remarks the tall, tanned farmer in the blue shirt on the other side of the table.

"Bee trees!" exclaimed Alice. "Don't tell me bees grow on trees down here!"

"In 'em. Not on 'em!" said the Ozarkian, handing a dish of boiled navy beans across the table. "Seen some wild bees yesti'day!"

Alice winks at me. Another Ozark tall tale, she implies. "Wild bees, eh? How do you find 'em?"

"Jis' toll 'em in," says the farmer.

"O, you lead them right up to you?" asks Alice.

"Shore do! Make sugar sirup. Sometimes we put sweet anise in it. Smells good. Spread it on the leaves. Bees come f'r it!"

"And then," exults Alice, "you put salt on their tails!"

"No'm! Flour on their backs!"

Our guest is startled but game. "What! No talcum powder!"

"Reckon you might use talcum. We jis' ketch one bee and put flour on its back!"

* * *

More diners come in and seat themselves. We hand them dishes and platters of food, and speak about the crops.

"Getting back to that bee with the flour on his back," says our guest. "What happens to him!"

"Beggin' your pardon, ma'am, but that's a she bee. Flour helps us time her."

"Now don't tell me you can estimate her speed by the amount of flour she fans off her back with her wings!"

"No'm. We jis' see how long it takes her to go to the hive and come back for more sirup. Funny things, bees! They always fly straight to the hive. We watch her as far as we can see her. Then we go to that spot 'n put more sirup on the leaves. We watch her ag'in. May take all day to track her down to the bee tree. Finally we see her go into an old holler tree! 'N there it is!"

"And you knock on the tree until the bees are scared to death?"

"No'm, we jis' cut the tree down and dig out the honey. Well, got to be gettin' along!"

Our guest giggled. "Isn't he a card? He actually thought I believed that story about wild bees!"

"Didn't you?" asked my mother, daughter of the man whom bees wouldn't sting. "That's exactly the way to find wild honey!"

THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

Today the melancholy news that summer is over has to be accepted, and without the aid of a crystal ball we can predict that in 10 days we'll be besieged with inquiries on the quickest, surest way to condition hair for the essential fall permanent.

It's important to remember that you can't wipe out the whole summer's damage in a day. Weeks of sun baking, combined with the usual summer unwillingness to wield the hairbrush, mean that you have to double your efforts to restore oil to the parched locks.

You should brush like mad every day. And massage the scalp every day, too, lifting it and rotating it until it tingles. If scalp and hair are extremely dry apply a little light oil as a dressing and massage it, or some good scalp cream, into the scalp each night.

If you can possibly afford them, have some reconditioning treatments at your beauty shop. There is no brushing to equal that given by a professional.

Get the best permanent you can afford. Have a test curl first, and do remember that the shop that has good equipment and good operators must charge a fairly good price.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1941: By Ely Culbertson.]

Expert players do not lay down aces haphazardly. It follows, therefore, that when they do lead an ace, certain conclusions may be drawn. The declarer in today's hand made a shrewd deduction from a defensive play and found an ingenious method by which to save his contract.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 spade	2 clubs
3 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

East-West were shamefully outbid on this hand. At match point duplicate they should not have sold out so cheaply, since they were in a position to make more tricks at either clubs or diamonds than North-South could make in spades.

West, for reasons best known to himself, did not like to lead the blank ace of hearts, choosing, instead, the queen of diamonds. Dummy's king covered, the ace won, and the 10 of diamonds was returned. West collected the jack and nine, and then belatedly laid down the heart ace. His next lead was the club king, which declarer won. The adverse trumps were drawn in two leads, and now came the crucial stage of the play. At this point almost every declarer would, I fear, lead the club jack and ruff it, not for any good reason, but simply with the notion that it could "do no harm." This declarer took a very different view of the matter. He looked upon West's cashing of the heart ace with deep suspicion and felt that there was a strong chance that all the remaining hearts were bunched in East's hand. If that were so, it would be impossible to establish a long heart trick and the defenders would collect, in all, three diamonds and three hearts for the defeat of the contract.

Declarer resolved to do a bit of research work. Carefully retaining the club jack, he led a heart to the king and was not surprised when West "failed." Now the great value of retaining the club jack became apparent. A spade was led back to the closed hand; the club jack was played, and when West covered he was graciously presented with the trick, dummy discarding a heart. Now West had to return a diamond or a club. Naturally, he chose the latter. The remaining heart loser was discarded from dummy, while declarer ruffed. Thus, by giving West a club trick, declarer salvaged two heart losers, and fulfilled his contract.

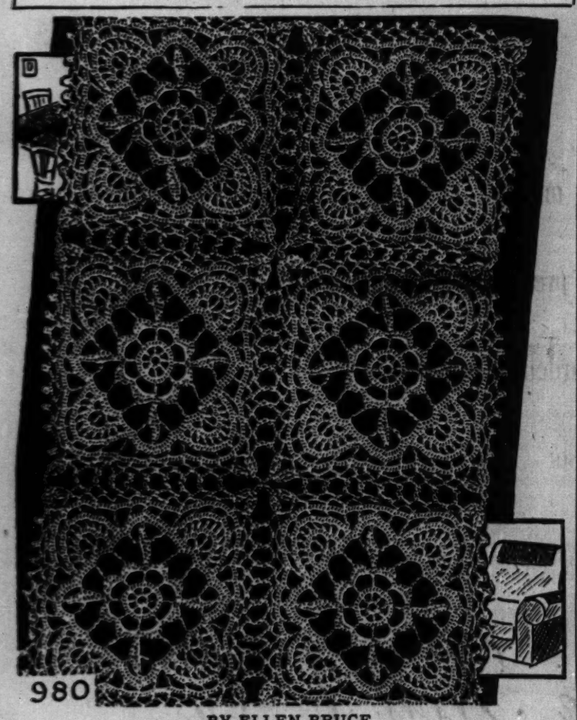
Medallion for Doilies



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Large crocheted medallions have a definite appeal for luncheon doilies, tablecloths, or bedspreads. This good looking motif may be used for any type of household decoration. Six medallions create a luncheon doily measuring 16 by 10½ inches. As a chair set, six are required for the back, and four for each armrest. Nicest of all, these squares are quickly made and set together.

For instructions in crocheting the square medallion for luncheon doilies, No. 980, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 8th avenue, New York City.

WISHMAKER'S HOUSE

ENSEMBLE

☆The Cavalier Award to the merchant, who, in the conduct of his business, has contributed the most to the good name of the furniture industry

This Silver Trophy is solid proof of the fact that Carson's Wishmaker's House is recognized as one of the great contributions to the art of furnishing a home. Here is the visible evidence of the Cavalier Award, which is presented annually by the National Retail Furniture Association to commend the year's outstanding contribution to home-furnishings. It was awarded to our own exclusive, Wishmaker's House Regency Ensemble. We are proud of it. Not too proud, however, to try for a successor that not merely equals, but also excells, the Regency Ensemble. We think we've done it. Watch our forthcoming advertisements for the complete details of this new 1941 Ensemble.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 31.—The White Sox didn't just sneak out of second place today as they lost a double header to the Browns, 12 to 8 and 5 to 4, to drop four straight in their three day visit here. They dived out!

The Sox were fantastically elfish in the first game during the course of which their manager, Jim Dykes, was given the bum's rush. In the second affair, they were more or less serious, but piteous. Edgar Smith had the second game in nice shape when forced to retire. He held the Brownies to two singles in seven innings, then yielded to the heat and a sore side. Then Pete Appleton and Bill Dietrich came on. And did they gum the works!

Dietrich Falls as Rescuer.

The Browns made one run off Appleton in the eighth and he went into the final inning with a 4 to 2 edge. Then, after one was out, it happened. Alan Strange batted for Bill Trotter, third Brownie pitcher, and singled to center. He stopped at third on Don Heffner's double to right.

With the tying runs on base, Dietrich came in and Harlond Clift fouled to Dario Lodigiani. A walk to George McQuinn, tho, filled the bases. The count was 3 and 2 on Walter Judnich when he tripled to center, clearing the bases and hanging the defeat on Dietrich.

As a result of today's foldup, Boston's Red Sox took over second place by half a game, but the Chicago Sox hold third place by a game over Cleveland.

FIRST GAME

The Browns made one earned and two unearned runs in the first inning of the first game and had the bases loaded when the session ended. Heffner doubled and Clift, McQuinn and Berardino knocked singles in the inning, which was complicated when Hoag dropped an easy fly and Tresh was guilty of a passed ball.

In the second inning Taft Wright knocked his eighth homer of the year. The Sox went ahead with three runs in the third. Singles by Tresh and Lyons, a sacrifice by Knickerbocker, Kuhel's double, an infield out and a wild pitch were responsible for the cluster.

The Sox Fall Apart.

After Judnich had fanned at the start of the home third, Wright and Knickerbocker stood in short right and watched Laabs' fly plunk between them for a double. Cullenbine supplied the second out, then Berardino doubled along the left foul line, scoring Laabs with the tying run. Lyons argued Berardino's effort was foul but got little audience with Umpire Hubbard. Swift and Pitcher Bob Muncrief singled, the latter's smack scoring Berardino for the lead the Browns never lost.

A single by Clift was the only hit in the sixth, but three errors by Appling made it a three run session for the Browns. Four successive singles and a triple by Laabs, which should have been held by Hoag to a single, gave St. Louis four runs in the seventh.

The Sox belatedly came to life in the ninth. There were five singles in the inning, including a pinch hit by Julius Solters with the bases full. Judnich then made a spectacular catch of Knickerbocker's drive and Solters, who had rounded second, was doubled trying to get back to first.

SECOND GAME

The revised Sox lineup sent forth in the second game got busy immediately. Webb pushed off with a single to right and, after Kuhel had fanned, scored on Chapman's double to center. Ben went to third on Wright's infield out and scored on Appling's single to right. The Sox wasted a single by Smith in the second inning, a double by Smith with one out in the fifth, a double by Wright with one out in the sixth, and a single by Turner in the seventh.

The Browns made their first run in the seventh. Laabs led off with the second hit off Smith and Cullenbine walked. The pair advanced on Berardino's sacrifice, then Ferrell was given an intentional pass. Lucadello batted for Denny Galehouse, the Browns' starting pitcher, and flied to Solters, Laabs scoring.

Sox Pick Up Three Runs.

Jack Kramer pitched the eighth and the Sox made their third and fourth runs on three walks, a passed ball and a single by Solters.

Appleton, on taking over for Smith at the start of the eighth, encountered a touch of the befogged support which Lyons endured in the first game. With one down McQuinn's fly plunked for a double as Wright and Chapman stood and eyed each other. Kuhel made a great play on Judnich's grounder for the second out, but Laabs singled to center, scoring McQuinn. Cullenbine walked, but Berardino popped to Appling. Then came that ninth.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Altho they fell heir to a three run lead yesterday, the Cubs weren't able to make a success of their Sunday toil in Wrigley field. The lead melted down until a 3 to 3 tie had been created for Claude Passeau and Max Butcher to fight over. Then the Pirates nicked the Chicago ace for an eighth inning run that fastened a 4 to 3 beating on the sixth place occupants.

Passeau might have avoided his 13th defeat if Elbie Fletcher hadn't been among those trying to furnish fun and amusement for 12,289 spectators. Elbie took care of what remained of the Cubs' early lead by boosting a two run homer, his 10th, over the wall in the sixth. Not satisfied with arranging the 3 to 3 deadlock, Fletcher returned two innings later with a blow which, with Bill Nicholson's help, became the decisive factor.

Mr. Butcher Braces.

After the first inning the Cubs had reason to suspect that the portly Butcher was just the fellow they wanted to see. In the first three innings they piled up six hits, the last of the half dozen being Babe Dahlgren's 19th homer in the third.

Thereafter Max didn't give his foes much leeway. He let them have one hit at a time in five of the last six innings, but only one of the five was potent enough to get a Cub beyond first base. This was Dominic Dallessandro's double to right with one out in the ninth. But he was flagged trying for third on Clyde McCullough's roller and Pinch Batter Bob Scheffing supplied the third out.

Nicholson enrolled himself under the Pirate banner in the eighth by misjudging his fielding skill. Fletcher sent his defeat dealing hit to right with one out and Nicholson, instead of playing it for a single, had an idea he could accomplish the impossible. Bill dived sidewise and by the time he located the ball Fletcher was slowing up at third. Then, after Vince DiMaggio had fouled out, Spud Davis lined the game-winning single to right.

Cubs Score Two in First.

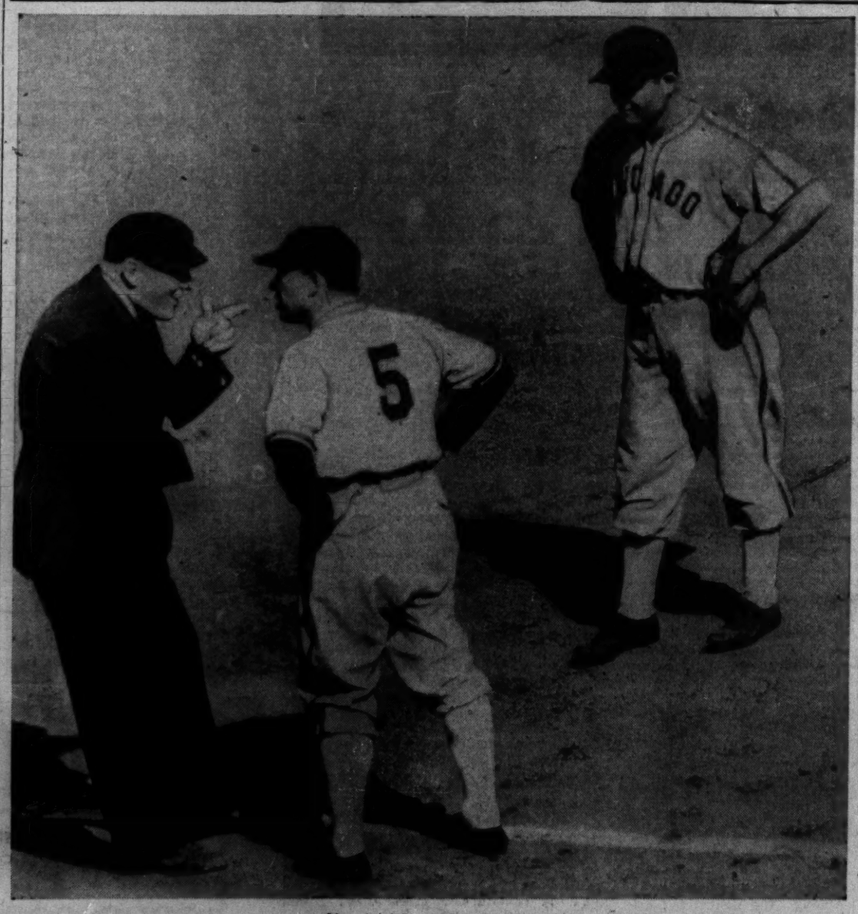
The Cubs turned a two run profit on their first inning because of three hits and a Pirate error. Stan Hack led off with a single to right and Bobby Sturgeon punched a single into left. Ed Stewart obligingly fumbled the ball so Hack took third and Sturgeon second. This put both in position to score when Phil Cavarretta singled to center. The latter was forced on Nicholson's tap to Fletcher, but in attempting a double play Alf Anderson threw without observing that first base was unguarded. Nicholson took second on the blunder and stayed there.

After Dahlgren's homer had sailed over the left field seats with two out in the third, the Pirates lost no time recapturing the run. Stu Martin put a stop to Passeau's perfect job by singling past Stringer with one out in the fourth. Both Bob Elliott and Stewart singled to right, Martin scoring and Elliott landing on third. The next two men were easy for Passeau, one of them Fletcher. But Elbie wasn't so easy in the sixth. After Martin had singled, the Pirate first baseman walloped his tying homer over the wall in right.

JOE M'CARTHY'S CONDITION SAID MUCH IMPROVED

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31 (AP).—The condition of Joe McCarthy, manager of the New York Yankees baseball team, was said by his physician today to be considerably improved. McCarthy is confined to a hospital with gall bladder trouble. Dr. Hugh H. Hussey, the physician, said he thought he would be released within a few days.

This Was Just Before Mr. Dykes Departed



[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Another of the numerous dark moments in the life of Manager Jimmy Dykes of the White Sox who listens attentively while Umpire Cal Hubbard tells him to leave the field during yesterday's first game between the Sox and Browns in St. Louis. Dario Lodigiani, Sox third baseman, looks on. Hubbard had the last word after Dykes turned a verbal barrage on him. The Sox lost both games, 12 to 8 and 5 to 4. Dykes spent an unhappy night on the train from St. Louis to Cleveland where the Sox play twice today.

Strange Parade of Events Recorded in 1941 Amateur

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

From Monday's tee to Saturday's green, last week's 45th National Amateur golf tournament at the Omaha Field club set a number of strange records, none of which can be indited in any annual report, so that an immediate review of the odd career of this 1941 show appears to be in order.

From last Sunday's "withdrawal" of John Barnum of Chicago to Saturday's left handed crowning of Marvin [Bud] Ward as the new champion, the amateur seldom has produced such a weird parade of happenings. Certainly, the treatment accorded Ward in his 4 and 3 victory over Pat Abbott in the final marks a new low in gallery conduct.

Antagonism Reaches Peak.

At no time during his match play labors was Ward, one of golf's greatest competitors, the object of the crowd's cheers, regardless of how many fine shots he hit. This antagonism, which might have been generated by a number of causes, reached its peak on the 24th green Saturday, when the gallery in back of that carpet deliberately halted a wild shot by Abbott, after having scurried right and left to permit Ward's second to dribble down a slope into the rough.

Here it was that President Harold Pierce of the USGA was moved to deliver a brief lecture on sportsmanship. In the next few holes, the pro-Abbott fans actually were heard to cheer a couple of Bud's shots, but on the 31st they opened another wide avenue to permit another of the champion's seconds to slide onto the 32d tee, a number of them shouting, "Hurray, let it go!"

Hoisted Loser; Ignored Winner.

Whether Ward's alleged criticism of the condition of the Field club course [and he was not alone in that] was responsible for the hostility remains to be seen. It may be that Bud was the last of the favorites to survive a week of upsets, and that the crowds naturally were cheering for the underdog. It may be that Ward's bulldog attitude on the course had the gallery pulling against him.

The mystery that probably never will be solved is why the fans hoisted Loser Abbott on their shoulders after the match, and practically ignored Ward. What they overlooked is that Ward is the type that thrives on opposition and that their behavior could not have been of any great mental aid to Abbott. The whole situation proves again that the gallery is as much a part of a golf match as the players and that the USGA, in the future, should address the crowds on the first tee of each round, much as they instruct the contestants.

A Lesson to Golfers.

The quarter-final match between Bobby Riegel of Houston and Bruce McCormick of Glendale, Cal., should stand as a lesson to all golfers to spend their off-season spare hours in the coming winter studying the rules. McCormick, on the ninth hole, accidentally moved his ball, and when a ruling was asked for, Bruce said he was content with Referee Bill Nicholson's statement that he had violated rule 9, which in match play penalizes the player the loss of a hole for moving the ball. Both overlooked rule 13, which states that the penalty for accidental moving is only one stroke. McCormick's acceptance of the ruling, however, followed by his teeing off on No. 10, ended any chance of appeal he might have had, under rule 35.

The general feeling among players and newspaper men at the end of the tournament was that the USGA can improve the tournament by returning it to the British all-match play system. A number of players were not satisfied with the match play draw this year, which was transacted thru a shuffle system, after seeding only two players—Medalist Skip Alexander in the upper bracket and Defending Champion Dick Chapman in the lower. A majority felt that the draw should have been held on a numerical basis, based on qualifying scores.

WHAT F. D. R. SAID

In a speech last Nov. 1, President Roosevelt said:

"I am fighting to keep this nation prosperous and at peace. I am fighting to keep our people out of foreign wars, and to keep foreign conceptions of government out of our United States."

Last Nov. 4, on the eve of his third term re-election, the President said:

"Across the seas life has gone underground. I think I speak the minds of all of you when I say that we thank God that we live in the sunlight and the starlight of peace—that we are not in war, and that we propose and expect to continue to live our lives in peace—under the peaceful light of heaven."

FIELD OF 11 RUNS TODAY IN $25,000 HOMEWOOD RACE

Big Pebble Is Favorite at Washington Park.

Handicap Field

ELEVEN horses are scheduled to go to the post in today's $25,000 Washington Park handicap at a mile and a quarter. The field in order of post positions follows:

Horse	Wt.	Jockey	Prob. Odds
Tola Rose	110	C. Bierman	15-1
Steel Heels	111	W. Yarberry	15-1
Sirocco	114	J. Richard	6-1
Haltal	115	C. McCreery	4-1
Big Pebble	120	J. Westrope	3-1
†Bushwhacker	110	J. Adams	4-1
Idle Sun	105	F. Farrell	20-1
Burning Star	104	B. Cruickshank	15-1
Stimady	108	A. Snider	30-1
Shot Put	115	W. Garner	8-1
†Equifox	115	A. Craig	4-1

†Walmac farm-Howard Wells entry.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The best handicap horses of east and west will race this afternoon at Washington Park before a Labor day crowd of 35,000. The $25,000 Washington Park handicap has drawn the fastest and the most widely representative field that has been mustered in this division anywhere in the country this season.

In the overnight field of 11 there are horses which have dominated the winter season in Florida and the summer racing in New York and California as well as in Illinois. The best of them come together for a showdown today.

Edward S. Moore's Big Pebble, winner of the $50,000 Widener handicap at Hialeah and the $75,000 Hollywood Gold Cup in July, is expected to go to the post as the favorite, but he will have strong competition from Haltal, Equifox, Sirocco, Bushwhacker and other dangerous contenders.

Haltal Whipped Favorite.

Haltal, owned by Royce G. Martin, goes into the race fresh from his victory over Big Pebble, Corydon, and Fenelon in the Saratoga handicap last week. Big Pebble was beaten by the margin of a head on that occasion, but there has been a four pound weight shift in his favor for this race. He is dropping two and his adversary is picking up two.

Bill Finnegan, Big Pebble's trainer, said yesterday that he's as much concerned about Equifox as he is about Haltal.

"Big Pebble and Haltal are both hard-hitting horses," Finnegan remarked. "They can put on a great race between themselves. But we're worried about some of these Chicago horses—particularly Equifox."

Fear Equifox—With Reason.

And those who have watched Equifox come up this season agree that the visitors have reason to be afraid of him. Equifox's first important victory was scored in the Lincoln handicap on the last day of the Lincoln Fields meeting. Moving over to Arlington, he was beaten by a head in the Stars and Stripes handicap but went on later to win the Arlington handicap and the Equipoise mile.

Equifox is a rather slow beginner but is noted for his finishing power. He usually starts to move up swiftly on the last turn and he puts plenty of zip into his running all the rest of the way. In his last start, the Sheridan handicap at Washington Park, an impost of 122 pounds proved a bit too heavy for him to carry in pursuit of Misty Isle when she was breaking the track record.

Sirocco Is Improved.

Equifox, owned by Howard Wells, will be coupled in the betting with Bushwhacker, which is trained by Wells for R. W. McIlvain of Chicago.

Sirocco, which has been steadily regaining the racing ability he showed in winning the Classic last year, delivered two sparkling efforts recently at Washington Park. He won at a mile in 1:36 2-5 and at a mile and an eighth in 1:50 4-5.

Steel Heels has been running good races, but he hasn't been able to win since the Stars and Stripes handicap at Arlington. Shot Put, the distance champion, may find the company a bit too fast for him at a mile and a quarter.

DADE DRILLS FOR RETURN CHANCE WITH HAWAIIAN

Hopes to Battle Inamine in CYO Bouts.

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Harold Dade, hard luck boxer of the Catholic Youth organization, worked out in the Savoy gymnasium on the south side yesterday in preparation for his anticipated return bout with Paul Inamine, stocky Hawaiian flyweight, in Soldiers' field Sept. 17.

Inamine's bobbing and weaving tactics overcame a handicap in height and reach to score a three round decision over the Chicagoan in last year's intersectional meet. It was one of three bouts the boys from Hawaii won in the 1940 tournament. The CYO eventually won the match, 8 to 3.

Altho this victory, an achievement which preserved the CYO's undefeated record in team competition, took the sting from Dade's setback the 18 year old Negro lad is more determined than ever to obtain revenge for his humiliation. Dade will be one of 60 boys leaving for Palos Park on Saturday to vie for one of the 10 places on the intersectional squad. Unless he suffers an injury in the 10 days of sparring at camp, he is practically assured of winning a berth.

Goes to AAU Finals.

To guarantee another chance against Inamine, Dade will resume his pre-camp drills in CYO gymnasium at 31 East Congress street tomorrow afternoon. Dade has appeared in the Chicagoland Golden Gloves finals, the Golden Gloves intercity meet, and the National AAU finals this year.

In explaining his previous defeat by Inamine, Dade said he was meeting a foe with an unfamiliar style. Since that embarrassment Dade has corrected several faults thru competition with boxers using similar modes of attack. For that reason he is confident of beating his rival this time.

The rangy Chicagoan [he stands 5 feet 3¼ inches now, a full inch taller than a year ago] recalled his conquest of Lawrence Torpey of Philadelphia in Rochester, N. Y., on July 22. Torpey had beaten Dade in Boston for the National AAU 112 pound championship three months earlier.

Loses to Noto in Golden Gloves.

The only defeats Dade has suffered since the encounter against Hawaii last summer were absorbed in important tournaments. In addition to losing the national title to Torpey, Dade lost disputed verdicts to Al Noto, a fellow CYO representative, for the Golden Gloves championship and to Diogenes Leon of New York in the intercity Golden Gloves tournament, both in Chicago Stadium, last spring. In 20 other matches he emerged victorious.

The invading force will arrive from Honolulu Sept. 9, accompanied by five officials. The boys are scheduled to reach San Francisco on Wednesday. Thomas O'Connell, director of the CYO boxing department, will board a plane for California this morning to greet them on their arrival there.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES—DEATH RIDES THE NIGHT WIND

16 YEAR OLD GIRL NEARLY UPSETS A TENNIS QUEEN

Pauline Betz Wins Only After Long Fight.

New York, Aug. 31 (AP).—Doris Hart, a spindly 16 year old girl from Miami, Fla., came within a few shots of giving the tournament committee collective heart failure today as the national tennis meet passed thru an otherwise uneventful second day at Forest Hills.

Doris, who drew the honor of opposing Pauline Betz in front of all the spectators on the stadium court, turned in and tried her juvenile best to trim the tournament's No. 1 seeded player. Egged on by the crowd and obviously enjoying herself, Doris fought stubbornly thru a long, thrilling third set before she finally bowed to her more experienced opponent, 5-7, 6-0, 11-9.

Doris Come Back.

The crowd thought maybe Doris was fooling when she slugged the ball with abandon to capture the first set. After all, the Miami miss previously had done nothing more exciting than reach the finals of the National Girls' meet. And when Miss Betz won the second set in a hurry, everybody thought it was all over.

But they sadly misjudged Doris. Her service, perhaps the fastest of any woman amateur today, repeatedly whizzed past the thoroly uncomfortable Miss Betz, and it was only her inability to sustain the long rallies that eventually beat her.

As it was, Doris fought off two match points against her when Miss Betz led at 5-4, and then streaked thru two straight games to lead at 6-5 with her own service coming up. That was her great chance, but apparently she realized it all of a sudden and the pressure was too much, for she lost her fine service at love, and from there on Miss Betz never lost the lead.

Bill Gallon and His Excellency Race in Indiana

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 31 (AP).—The rivalry between Bill Gallon, winner of the Hambletonian stake, and His Excellency will be resumed tomorrow as they meet in the $6,500 Horseman futurity stake for 3 year old trotters, top event in the opening of the Grand Circuit harness racing program at the Indiana state fair.

Bill Gallon defeated His Excellency in two of three heats of the Hambletonian but dropped all three heats to the Carolina colt in the Governor's stake at Syracuse, N. Y., last week.

Another highly regarded entrant in the Horseman futurity will be Volstadt, which conquered both Bill Gallon and His Excellency prior to the Hambletonian, for which Volstadt was not eligible.

Some fast miles are expected in the $1,500 Claypool hotel event for 2:08 pacers. Brookedale and Atlantic Hanover, two of the entrants in that race, have turned in heats at two minutes or better this year.

The other two races on the opening day program will be the Indiana Trotting and Pacing association $1,800 stakes for 2 year old pacers and trotters.

Ben Hogan's 275 Captures Hershey Open

Hershey, Pa., Aug. 31 (AP).—Ben Hogan, Hershey Country club professional, shot a last-round 70 today to win the $5,000 Hershey Open golf championship with 275, five shots under the tournament record established in 1937 by Henry Picard. Hogan had rounds of 69-67-69-70 in contrast to Picard's 70-65-73-72 four years ago when Picard was the professional here.

Hogan was 17 strokes under par for the 72 holes, an amazing exhibition for four days in which he seldom strayed from the straight and narrow path from tee to green and putted well at all times.

Steady All the Way.

He started the final round with 205, three shots ahead of Lloyd Mangrum, of Monterey, Cal., and was steady all the way. His 35 on the front nine was one under par and he picked up two more sub-par strokes on the way home. He finished dramatically before a big gallery, firing his tee shot on the par three 18th within six feet of the flag and holing the putt for a deuce.

Hogan got $1,200 for first prize, running his money winnings for the year, best of the pros, to $13,393. Sam Snead, his nearest competitor, has earned $9,198.

Mangrum had a 72, one under par for 280, equalling the tournament record, and picked up $750 for his efforts.

Debut Before Home Folks.

This was the 54th consecutive tournament in which Hogan, a transplanted Texan, has finished in the money, a record breaking feat stretching over two years.

It was Hogan's debut before the home folks. He switched to Hershey from White Plains, N. Y., last winter, and he did not disappoint them.

Hogan made a farce out of par on the back nine where there are three five par holes. His power with the woods mastered the distance with regularity and twice he shot the nine in 32 strokes, equalling the course record.

Scores of the leaders with amounts won:

Ben Hogan	205—70—275	$1,200

RED SOX SPLIT DOUBLE HEADER WITH ATHLETICS

Win Opener, 5-3, Then Lose Second, 3-2.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 31 (AP).—Largely due to passing Ted Williams intentionally three times, Phil Marchildon yielded three hits to the Red Sox today to gain a 3 to 2 decision and a split for the Philadelphia Athletics after the Red Sox had taken a 5 to 3 victory in the first half of a double header.

Williams hit a homer, his 31st of the season, off Jack Knott in the sixth inning of the first game. That was his only hit in three trips. In the second game he fouled out to Catcher Frank Hayes in addition to his three walks to alice two points off his batting average, now .407.

Dick Newsome chalked up his 16th victory in the opening game and Earl Johnson tried to get back into winning stride in the second, which was called after seven innings because of darkness. Scores:

CARDINALS BEAT REDS, 6 TO 3, FOR FIFTH STRAIGHT

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 31 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals halted the Reds' ninth inning rally today to win their fifth straight game, 6 to 3, and keep the National league lead. Morton Cooper of the Cards beat Bucky Walters of the Reds for the third time out of four, altho both pitchers gave way to relief hurlers for the last two innings.

Walters allowed only five hits, but gave five walks and had a wild pitch and a wild throw. The wild throw, coming with the bases loaded in the first inning on Johnny Hopp's single and two walks, cost two runs. The wild pitch came after Hopp's double in the third and allowed the Cardinal center fielder to score the third run.

The Reds broke a string of 26 scoreless innings the Cards had stacked up against opposition in the fifth. Frank McCormick his his 13th homer of the year in the sixth. Score:

SATCHEL PAIGE LEADS MONARCHS TO 8-3 VICTORY

Satchel Paige scored a triumph in Comiskey park yesterday as a crowd of 15,000 saw him lead the champion Kansas City Monarchs to an 8 to 3 victory over the Chicago American Giants in an official Negro American league game. The contest was a benefit for the Provident hospital.

Given a seven run lead by teammates off the pitching of Charley Shields and Willie Ferrell of Chicago in the first two innings, Paige took it easy as he yielded three runs and eight hits in six innings. Hilton Smith finished for the Monarchs and gave up two additional hits.

Willie Cornelius was the third American Giants' hurler. He yielded a homer by Joe Greene, Kansas City catcher, in the fifth.

Sox Leave Browns and Meet Indians in Double Header

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 31—The White Sox, mildly upset over the manner in which they made spectacles of themselves in their three day visit here, raced for a special train which was to carry them to Cleveland where they are to play a double header with the Indians tomorrow.

The Sox, who were in second place this noon and now are in third place, can drop to fourth by a game if they blow two to the Indians tomorrow. Thornton Lee and Johnny Rigney will pitch for the Sox. Jim Bagby and John Gromek may work for the Indians.

The Sox will return to Chicago Tuesday morning and will do their loafing in mufti until obliged to face the Browns in a night game Friday.

Dodgers Rally to Rout Giants, 13-6; Keep Pace

New York, Aug. 31 (AP).—The Dodgers defeated the Giants today, 13 to 6, to remain on the heels of St. Louis in the National league flag chase. A crowd of 24,694 saw Dolph Camilli hit a three run homer in the seventh to put the game on ice.

The Dodgers used four pitchers, including Kirby Higbe and Whit Wyatt. Luke Hamlin, who relieved Higbe in the fourth, was the winner. The Giants had three pitchers, with Cliff Melton the loser.

Manager Leo Durocher inserted himself at shortstop and batted four runs across the plate, getting hits twice with the bases loaded. Mel Ott clouted his 25th four bagger and Dick Bartell hit one in the sixth. Score:

SLEEPER IN NEW TAX BILL MEANS ADDED BURDENS

'Average Earnings' Formula Changed.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The new federal tax bill contains a "sleeper" clause that will exact excess profits taxes from many corporations that do not incur any liability under the terms of the present law. Other companies will pay greatly increased excess profits taxes if they use the "average earnings" method of figuring their normal profits.

A change in the formula for figuring "average earnings" is contained in a provision of the bill that has received little notice. The effect of the change was described yesterday by tax experts who have examined both the house and senate bills in detail.

Affects Earnings Method.

The change affects only companies that use the "average earnings" method of determining their normal profits. Both house and senate bills provide that earnings "before" normal taxes shall be used in figuring the average for the base period, 1936-39 inclusive. Under the present law the normal profits are determined by taking the average for the four base years "after" normal taxes. A credit

EXPECT EARLY PASSAGE.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—Passage by Friday or Saturday of the senate's $3,672,400,000 tax bill was predicted tonight by leaders in the upper house. Debate on the record bill is the chief concern of the senate this week. If senate leaders obtain passage this week, final enactment will come after conferees from that body and from the house iron out points of difference, chief among which is the reduced personal exemption, not a feature of the house bill.

of 95 per cent of the average earnings is allowed before the excess profits tax is applicable.

The new formula puts into the excess profit bracket many companies that would pay only normal federal taxes on 1941 income under the present method. It adds materially to the tax bills of other companies.

Treasury Effort Fails.

The treasury fought unsuccessfully to knock out entirely the "average earnings" method of calculating excess profits. Had its recommendations been accepted all corporations would have been forced to use the invested capital formula in figuring excess profits. Altho the treasury failed in this plan, which would have borne down heavily on companies with conservative capital structures, it has achieved a partial victory by getting the average earnings formula reversed. Members of both the house and senate committees refused steadfastly to accept the invested capital formula despite pressure from the treasury and President Roosevelt.

Little attention, however, was given in the committee hearings to the new method of calculating average earnings and the effect of the change has not been widely recognized by corporations which are most seriously affected if the bill passes.

Effects of Change Shown.

Applications of the present and proposed average earnings formulas to the two hypothetical corporations illustrate the effect the change will have on many business enterprises. The examples follow:

Corporation A has a profit for 1941 [before normal income tax and surtax] of $1,100,000. Profit [before normal tax] was $1,000,000 in each of the base years, 1936-'39.

After deducting normal taxes for the base years the average net profit after taxes was $830,000. After deducting the 30 per cent combined income and surtax provided for in the new law, the 1941 net profit is $770,000. Under the present average earnings formula the corporation is allowed an exemption of 95 per cent of its average base year earnings or $788,500 before the excess profits tax applies. Thus the corporation pays no excess profits tax because its 1941 net income after normal taxes is less than the exemption.

Results Under New Formula.

Using the new formula, however, its exemption is $950,000 [95 per cent of $1,000,000] and its "excess" profit is $150,000. On this amount it will pay a progressive tax of 35 to 50 per cent or a total of $66,500. Its total federal income tax as under the new formula will be $376,050, against $330,000 under the present method.

[Normal taxes are smaller under the new formula because they are calculated after excess profit taz is deducted. The saving is not enough, however, to offset the increase in the excess profits tax.]

Corporation B with profit [before normal tax] of 5 million 500 thousand dollars in 1941 and an average for the base years of 5 million dollars will incur a total excess profits tax of $404,000 under the proposed formula. It would have no excess profit liability if the present formula applied. Its combined federal income taxes will be $1,932,800 compared with 1 million 650 thousand dollars by the present method.

Argentina Aids U. S. to Cut Off Axis Supplies

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Aug. 31 (AP).—Argentina's new law controlling the export of strategic war materials, as well as other recent moves, is accepted by observers here as indicating that this country is moving away from her policy of strict neutrality in the European war and closer to the United States.

Persons acquainted with negotiations leading up to the export decree published a few days ago as an Argentine defense measure said it was "one of the biggest breaks yet" in Argentina's traditional policy of counteracting United States influence in South America where possible.

The action was requested by the United States, these sources said, and constitutes a part of the inter-American program to make the western hemisphere self sufficient in war needs and to seal resources of the hemisphere against the axis.

Prestige of Argentina High.

Because of Argentina's prestige among her South American neighbors, her position of this program has been Washington's biggest headache.

Effect of the decree is to cut off from the axis a mineral of which Germany has little—tungsten. Mixed with steel to make tools, tungsten is vital to the munitions industry.

Chief sources are the far east and South America. The far eastern supply is controled by the Chinese, English, and Dutch. In South America, the Argentine decree completes an export barrier already erected by the only major tungsten producing country, Bolivia.

Informed sources expressed the belief that Argentina would not close a door so important to the axis unless she was losing fear of postwar trade retaliation from a victorious Germany.

Only Two Doors Open to Axis.

The decree also gives the Americas exclusive use of other vital raw materials of this country, chiefly beryl, mica, iron, copper, manganese, and aluminum. Beryl is used to harden aluminum for airplanes and in gun barrels so they can withstand the heat of firing. Mica is in big war-time demand to insulate sparkplugs, magnetos, and radio tubes.

Chile and Colombia are the only South American countries not now committed to keeping their mineral resources out of the hands of the axis. Colombia, however, is relatively unimportant as a source for these materials. Chile is still negotiating with Japan over copper, mercury, cobalt, manganese, and molybdenum, but is also considering a United States bid for the full output.

BUS LINE SERVICE IS TIED UP BY DRIVERS' STRIKE

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 31 (AP).—Northland-Greyhound bus service to and from the Twin Cities and covering an area of eight midwest states was at a standstill today as the result of a strike of 800 bus drivers and maintenance men.

The dispute involves a pension plan instituted by the company which the firm said was voluntary.

FEDERAL LABOR POLICY TERMED 'NEAR CHAOTIC'

Seizure of Shipyard Is Assailed.

New York, Aug. 31 (AP).—Walter D. Fuller, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, said today the government labor policy was "little short of chaotic," and referred to federal seizure of the Kearny, N. J., shipyard as an example.

Walter D. Fuller.

A "Labor day letter," addressed to 8,000 members of the association, said the Kearny incident was of far reaching importance "and not merely to the employés of the particular company, who as federal employés may now exercise privileges only, where once they had rights."

"So long as the government permits such conditions as led to its taking over of the Federal Shipbuilding plant," Fuller said, "it is encouraging similar conditions with similar results thruout defense industries.

Could Destroy Free System.

"If the forces which prefer the peculiar brand of totalitarianism which is based on government ownership and operation of all facilities of production can secure their ends by making arbitrary and unreasonable demands upon management, that can be quite as effective in destroying our system of free enterprise and representative government as could any other means.

"If a government agency, the National Defense Mediation board, which exists by executive order only and which was designed to have no function or powers save those of mediation and conciliation, is thus to be placed in position to secure such drastic executive enforcement of its mere recommendations, then that agency has assumed greater importance and secured to itself greater potential powers of enforcement than any agency of government created by act of congress now possesses.

Effects Are Widespread.

"It should be obvious now to the board that when it forces a 'closed shop' or 'maintenance of membership' provision on an employer, that action immediately affects the 'merits' in cases over the same issues in plants thruout the country. Government seizure and operation of plants as a result of labor disputes is a mere expedient and does not represent a permanent or statesmanlike solution of problems whose roots go deeper. Causes of such disputes are inadequately dealt with by existing law."

Fuller said all federal labor laws operate against the employer, and that none places any restraints or obligations on labor organizations. At the same time, he said, labor organizations "may make any kind of demands or conditions they see fit, are not required to bargain in good faith, and may break off bargaining negotiations and resort to strikes or other militant action at any time they see fit."

Gabraith said the men were being assigned to special sections dealing with commodities with which they had had particular experience and would work there with economists and other technical experts.

★SMALL BUSINESS★ MAN'S DEPARTMENT

This department is prepared to help the small business man who is seeking information on priorities, substitute materials, and related subjects. Inquiries should be directed to the Small Business Man's department, Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill. All inquiries will be given careful attention. Letters on subjects of broad interest will be published and commented upon.

The scarcity of vital raw materials created by the funneling of supplies into armament industries has stirred apprehension among small business men making or dealing in office equipment and supplies, according to a study made yesterday by the Small Business Man's department.

With future supplies of aluminum, tin, copper, brass, bronze, rubber, iron, and steel uncertain because of priority control, manufacturers of office appliances are faced with a constriction of production of certain lines.

Metal furniture, filing cabinets, portable and junior typewriters, cash registers, and other similar less essential articles will be pruned from production schedules, it was indicated, to make way for standard equipment needed by the government and armament industries.

Industry Less Vulnerable.

The office equipment industry is less vulnerable to priority control than other nonmilitary trades because of its strategic position in modern business. In the mass of paperwork involved in keeping accounts, conveying messages, planning, scheduling, and dispatching, the modern business organization cannot function efficiently without office machines. Typewriters, addressing machines, duplicators, calculators, tabulators, and accounting machines are necessary tools.

The government itself has been one of the largest, if not the largest, users of office machinery. For this reason many in the industry believe that reasonably high preference ratings will be attached to materials going into the manufacture of such machines and appliances.

Reason for Optimism.

Another reason for optimism among office equipment makers and dealers is that relatively small amounts of the critical metals like aluminum and copper are used in the machines, and fairly satisfactory substitutes are available. Last year the industry used 34,000 tons of iron, 476,000 tons of steel, and only 172 tons of alloy steels.

Considering the importance of office machinery to the proper functioning of business organizations, trade sources expect that an adequate supply of raw materials will be made available for the production of standard equipment. Some of the loss of sales because of eliminated lines may be offset in part by increased purchases of standard machines.

Manufacturers of the office machines also have taken contracts for military articles, such as fuses, field kitchens, and shells, to compensate for the discontinuance of some former lines of appliances and equipment.

May Injure Some Dealers.

Elimination of less essential products, however, may hurt those dealers and retailers whose business consists to a large degree of portable typewriters and other goods sold to the general public.

The prospect of "ghost towns" as the waste product of the government's priority regulations is worrying chambers of commerce and government officials of towns which depend almost solely on one industry.

Plants in towns which have been making aluminumware, stoves, electrical appliances, metal office furniture, refrigerators, washing machines, slide fasteners, and other goods which consume metals subject to priority controls, are faced with complete or partial paralysis.

FULL PRIORITIES TODAY.

Full steel priorities go into effect today, and thruout industry the hope prevails that soon the present confusion on allocation of tonnages will be ended and manufacturers may learn where they stand in regard to steel supplies. While many authorities contend that rearmament industries are taking more steel than they can consume in the near future, the supply available for civilian production has dwindled to almost nothing, steel companies said. Chicago producers reported that, for the present at least, even the low rearmament ratings are of little value in obtaining deliveries on some types of steel.

COMPLIANCE.

What method is the OPM using to police manufacturers to see that materials obtained under preference rating certificates are not used illegally for nonmilitary products not covered in the certificate?

Answer: The control section of the OPM under L. J. Martin, assistant deputy administrator, is to be expanded, it is reported, and government inspectors will visit plants to determine if preferential scheduling is being observed and materials tagged with priority ratings are not diverted to other uses.

REPORT PERUVIAN STEEL FINANCING BY U. S. ARRANGED

Coast Iron Deposits to Be Developed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LIMA, Peru, Aug. 31.—It was reported here today that the United States Export-Import bank and Peruvian government officials had reached an agreement for financing the new Peruvian iron and steel industry engaged in exploiting the Marcona iron deposits on the seacoast 250 miles south of Lima. Drill tests conducted by a Chicago engineering firm, H. A. Brassert company, blocked out 14 million tons of ore containing 56 per cent of iron.

Tentative plans call for the erection of an iron and steel plant on Chimbote bay, 250 miles north of Lima, where enormous coal deposits and extensive hydroelectric power facilities are available. Chimbote and its twin bay, Samanco, are regarded as the finest site for a naval base on the west coast of South America.

Funds Available for Years.

Funds for the new industry, it is understood, will be made available as required over a period of years, preliminary plans providing for installation of mining, haulage, and loading equipment.

Prior to erection of the steel mills it is believed that the export shipment of iron ore and coal may develop a self-financing cycle which will materially decrease funds required from the Export-Import bank.

Parker van Zandt of the United States federal loan agency is in Lima making an extended survey preliminary to reorganization of the Peruvian national aviation services.

McCORD RADIATOR.

I have noticed that McCord Radiator stock has been quite active. Has the company shown a profit since the losses of a few years ago? Has it received government orders? What is its dividend position?—W. L. P.

Answer: After losses of $20,845 in 1937 and $316,777 in 1938, McCord Radiator and Manufacturing company returned to a profit basis in 1939, reporting net income of $69,036. In 1940 net income increased further to $253,086, the best showing since 1929. For the first six months this year the company reported profit of $200,911, compared with $80,799 in the same 1940 period.

McCord received $1,000,000 in orders for army helmets early this year. In July the company was awarded an additional contract totaling $3,215,370 from the war department.

No cash dividends have been paid on the class A stock since 1931 and none on the class B since 1930. Stock dividends were paid on the A shares in 1937 and 1938. On July 1 this year, class A arrears amounted to $10.50 a share.

McCord manufactures radiators and other parts such as gaskets and lubricators for the automotive industry. Its business fluctuates with output of the automobile industry.

Answer: These shoes are manufactured by the J. F. McElwain company, principal and almost wholly owned subsidiary of the Melville Shoe corporation.

NEW NAME.

I have heard that the name of the Duplan Silk corporation has been changed. If this is so, what is the new title?—M. E. W.

Answer: The name has not been changed as yet. At the annual meeting Sept. 9, however, stockholders will be asked to approve a change to Duplan corporation.

U. S. LETS FOREIGN SHIPS TAKE FUEL TO PHILIPPINES

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 31 [Special].—Acting again under his "emergency" powers, President Roosevelt today signed a certificate permitting shipments of gasoline, fuel oil and lubricants to the Philippines in vessels of foreign registry. The move was believed intended to assure movement of supplies to American military forces in the far east.

The certificate, suspending a law passed in 1904 forbidding such shipments, provides that new contracts may be given to bidders using foreign ships. It will permit British and Dutch tankers to serve the Islands.

The new action was considered another warning gesture against Japan.

Last week the President permitted foreign crews to man foreign ships seized in ports here.

MARKETS ARE CLOSED.

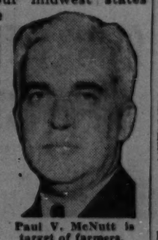
DAIRY FARMERS DENOUNCE NEW U. S. OLEO RULES

Say Butter Market Is Imperiled.

BY THORNTON SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 31.—Dairy farmers from four midwest states which produce more than half of all the butter made in the United States met here today to protest against New Deal discrimination against butter in favor of butter substitutes.



Paul V. McNutt is target of farmers.

The protest was directed chiefly against Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, who authorized new standards in the manufacture of oleomargarine, and against the consumers' council of the department of agriculture, which in a nation-wide broadcast urged America to eat oleomargarine in place of butter on the ground that butter was too expensive.

The protests also included an attack on Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard for asking America to eat less cheese so it might be saved for export to Great Britain.

New Code Denounced.

An estimated 3,000 dairy farmers and farm wives met at the La Crosse County Fair grounds to hear speakers denounce the new oleomargarine code as a conspiracy to sacrifice dairy farmers of the Republican states in the north to develop a greater market for the cottonseed products of the south.

Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, and Wisconsin were represented officially, altho the audience was composed chiefly of Wisconsin farmers and butter manufacturers. Howard Leonard, director of agriculture of Illinois, joined with Ralph Ammon, director of the department of agriculture and markets of Wisconsin, in explaining the purpose of the meeting.

Illinois, sixth among the states in the production of butter, is heartily in sympathy with the Wisconsin dairymen in opposing the new standards for oleo which will become effective Sept. 6. Leonard said Illinois' problem, he explained, is chiefly in opposing bootleggers of butter substitutes, a problem he expects to increase when the new code becomes operative.

Wisconsin Leading Producer.

The dairy market is the life blood of Wisconsin agriculture, Ammon declared. Wisconsin, he said produces 12 billion pounds of milk per year, churns 175 million pounds of butter, 10 per cent of the national production, and makes 365 million pounds of cheese, or more than is made in all the other 47 states combined.

The four states represented, he pointed out, produced 54 per cent of the creamery butter of the nation and 74 per cent of the butter sold on the four big butter markets of America—Chicago, New York, Philadelphia, and Boston.

The new standard for oleomargarine, Ammon explained, "provides that it may be colored to look like butter, may be flavored to taste like butter, may have vitamin A units added and may contain benzoate of soda.

Cite Transfer of Authority.

"So unfair is this order to the dairy industry that even an anti-dairy minded secretary of agriculture would not sign it. So the President was persuaded to transfer the food and drug administration from the department of agriculture to the Federal Security agency."

McNutt has declared the question of standards closed and refused the demand of dairymen for another public hearing before the order becomes effective. Today's meeting was one of several planned to force him to permit more hearings on the oleo standard and eventually to have congress restrain the administrative branches from issuing edicts affecting the nation's food.

Charles W. Holman, Washington representative of the National Dairy Coöperative council explained that a suit was filed yesterday in federal court in St. Louis seeking an injunction to restrain the government from putting the new code into effect.

Consumers Council Assailed.

Resolutions were adopted which attacked the sale of oleomargarine as an imitation of butter and recommended that the consumers council be abolished or reorganized in the light of agricultural as well as consumer interest and welfare.

"We resent the apparent utter lack of agricultural interest and understanding displayed by the Federal Security agency under whose jurisdiction the Federal Food and Drug administration promulgated the new standards of identity for oleomargarine," the resolutions read.

"We believe it is the introduction of an un-American principle not short of trickery to establish new standards without complete hearings. . . . We insist that any questions pertaining to agriculture be prevented from coming under the jurisdiction of the social security administrator and demand that the standard of identity for oleomargarine promulgated under his administration be rescinded at once."

United States Seriously in Danger of Inflation, Speaker Warns

Galbraith, Assistant U. S. Price Administrator, Says Nation Is Headed For Madness of World War Days If Farm Prices Spiral Upward.

Some plain talk good for wage earners as well as farmers was handed here when Assistant U. S. Price Administrator J. K. Galbraith spoke to Annual Farm and Home Week at Stillwater, Okla.

He pointed back to the first World War upward spiral, with its crazy results and paused along it to warn that we are headed for the same madness again, UNLESS!

Galbraith forecast $10 shoes forced upon wage earners IF farm prices shoot up to the hope of some farmers—cent cotton and $15 hogs. Galbraith said:

"For the first time in the 10 years we have been talking about it, there is a danger of inflation and a serious one. And that danger is not somewhere off in the remote distance. It is here!

"We had an inflation between 1916 and 1920. Between 1915 and 1918 prices approximately doubled.

Inflation Signs Visible

"How some other things happened as well. The price of wheat was 96 cents a bushel in 1915 and by 1918 wheat was selling for $2.60. Cotton had jumped from 11.3 cents in 1915 to 35.9 cents by the time of the Armistice. Pot roasts were worth $6.40 in Chicago in 1916 and in 1920 they sold for $14.62.

"Most of us, I think, resented having to pay 94 for a pair of shoes we once bought for $5. But, in all sentiments, these were not the dangerous price increases. The real danger for agriculture was in

Executive Council Against Radio Advertising Tax

The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor adopted a resolution at its meeting here opposing a special, punitive tax on radio advertising.

The council said in its resolution that while labor believes the United States Government should levy extra taxes on the people to pay for defense work "we do not believe in punitive or discriminatory taxation such as a special levy on radio advertising broadcasts."

Defeat of All Anti-Labor Bills Hailed as Vindication of Workers

Executive Council Say Cooperative Policies of A. F. L. Made Entire Nation See Foolishness of Compulsory Labor Legislation.

Concluding its mid-summer session at Chicago, Ill., the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor declared that every major anti-labor proposal thus far acted upon by Congress this year "has been soundly defeated."

In reviewing the record, the Council proclaimed that the cooperative policies of the American Federation of Labor in the national defense program had made the entire nation see the foolishness of trying to force labor to do something that it was more than willing to do voluntarily.

"The Executive Council, in reviewing the legislative record of the current session of Congress, is gratified to report that every major proposal to shackle organized labor and destroy the freedom of American workers has been soundly defeated.

"The enemies of labor saw in the defense emergency a golden opportunity to deprive the workers of the gains they had won by years of struggle. They tried to frighten the American people into believing that labor was disloyal and out to wreck the defense program. In this propaganda campaign, they were given aid and comfort by a small group of Communist-controlled unions, not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, which did call a few unwarranted strikes. The enemies of labor tried to magnify these relatively unimportant stoppages into a nation-wide strike wave in order to gain support for legislation which would abolish the right to strike.

DRIVE THE RASCALS OUT!

When a Chicago newspaper that has been conducting an expose of rotten conditions in certain Chicago labor unions receives anonymous threats against its staff because of this, it is the utmost concern of every decent trades unionist in Chicago.

The campaign of The Chicago Tribune to spotlight for investigation those who prey on labor has the endorsement of every honest man and woman. No greater crime exists, in our opinion, than the wilful pilfering of the workers by those to whom they look for help.

While the Chicago Federation of Labor and the Chicago Tribune do not always agree on what is best for labor, there can be no difference between us and the urgency of driving the rascals from the labor movement in Chicago and everywhere else. In this fight we welcome the support of the Chicago Tribune or any other agency. We disown and denounce the type of individual who is resentful of it as an enemy of honest labor.

These pilferers of the trusting and innocent workers are the most dangerous enemies labor has today. There is no place in organized labor for the racketeer, the chiseler, the fixer or the terrorist.

On this Labor Day we ask that Chicago organized labor, with many years of honorable record behind it, rededicate itself to purging its ranks of the leeches who fatten at the expense of the workers.
